ECONOMICS NOBEL TO 3 FOR WORK ON INNOVATION-DRIVEN GROWTH

Joel Mokyr, Philippe Aghion, and Peter Howitt won Nobel prize in economics for their research explaining how tech drives economic growth

UNDERSTANDING SUSTAINED ECONOMIC GROWTH

American-Israeli economic historian Mokyr showed that for innovation to continue, people need more than just proof that something works, they also need to understand how and why it works. Aghion and Howitt studied "creative destruction", which happens when a better product replaces an older one, causing the older businesses to fall behind | P14

HIGHLIGHTING THE ROLE OF TECHNOLOGY

- Mokyr showed how inventions like smartphones and the internet brought huge benefits, even if they aren't visible in economic data
- "Their work shows that we must uphold the mechanisms that underlie creative destruction, so we do not fall back into stagnation," said John Hassler, chair of the Nobel economics prize committee

All Israeli hostages, 1,968 Palestinians freed

AGENCIES

US President Donald Trump and several other world leaders on Monday signed a Gaza ceasefire deal during a peace summit in Egypt after Hamas freed all 20 living hostages and Israel released 1,968 Palestinian prisoners under the US-brokered agreement.

In Tel Aviv, Israelis erupted in cheers as hostages were confirmed free, while Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza greeted buses of released prisoners with celebrations.

Under the deal, Hamas is also required to return the bodies of 28 hostages who died or were killed in captivity.

The Israeli military said on Monday night that the bodies of four deceased hostages were handed over to the Red Cross by Hamas.

Speaking to Israeli lawmakers, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said he was "committed to this peace," signalling the war that began when Hamas militants attacked southern Israel on October 7, 2023, could finally be ending.

US President Donald Trump also addressed the Israeli Knesset (Parliament) on Monday, where he hailed an end to a "painful nightmare". "For so many families across this land, it has been years since you've known a single day of true peace," Trump said. "Not only for Israelis, but also for Palestinians and for many others, the long and painful nightmare is finally over," he added. Trump was greeted with a standing ovation by Israeli lawmakers as he entered the Knesset.

While Hamas has handed over the bodies of four captives, it was not immediately clear when the rest would be released.

"Hamas is required to abide by the agreement and make the necessary efforts to return all the bodies," the Israeli military said.

SC orders CBI probe into Karur stampede

SUCHITRA KALYAN MOHANTY
@ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Monday ordered a CBI investigation into the Karur stampede in which 41 people died and over 100 were injured during a rally organised by actor-politician Vijay's Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK) on September 27.

A bench of Justices JK Maheshwari and NV Anjaria said the incident has shaken the nation's conscience, left an imprint in the minds of the citizens throughout the country, and deserves a fair and impartial investigation. The bench, in its interim order on a plea by the TVK and three others seeking an independent probe, also set up a three-member supervisory committee headed by retired SC judge Justice Ajay Rastogi to monitor the CBI investigation. The committee will include two IPS officers of Tamil Nadu cadre who are not natives of Tamil Nadu.

"The officers of the CBI are directed to submit a monthly progress report of the probe to the committee, which may be placed for consideration before this court as and when required. We request that the investigation be completed as expeditiously as possible within the statutory time frame," the bench said.

Suspending the Madras HC's direction to appoint a Special Investigation Team (SIT), and inquiry commission headed by former HC judge Justice Aruna Jagadeesan appointed by the Tamil Nadu government, the top court asked the state to extend full cooperation to the officers of the central agency.

Explaining the rationale for ordering the CBI probe in the case, the Supreme Court observed that the comments made by senior TN police officers before the media regarding the Karur stampede may create doubt in the minds of citizens about the impartiality and fairness of the ongoing investigation. The court observed that, according to the petitioners, an investigation undertaken by the same police force whose top officials had publicly exonerated their subordinates by asserting that adequate steps had been taken, would lack the element of fairness and impartiality. CM hints at cabinet rejig at dinner meet

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

WITH his government completing the half-way mark of two-and-a-half years in office, Chief Minister Siddaramaiah hosted a dinner for his cabinet colleagues at his residence on Monday night. At the event, he hinted at a cabinet reshuffle if the Congress high command gives its approval, but asked the ministers not to worry about it and to continue to focus on their respective departments.

Since he mentioned the reshuffle and held one-on-one meetings with the ministers when Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar stepped out for a while gave rise to speculation, sources said. This gave enough indication that the CM is in favour of the rejig after the Bihar Assembly polls in mid-November, they added. Many aspirants, including those from Siddaramaiah's coterie -- Ramadurga MLA Ashok Pattan and Bangarpet MLA S N Narayanaswamy -- have publicly expressed their desire to become ministers expecting the reshuffle soon. Those who will be dropped are likely to be given posts befitting their profile in the party organisation at the state and national level, a source revealed. P4

RASHMI PATIL @ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka State Natural Disaster Monitoring Centre (KSNDMC) along with UNICEF launched Karnataka State Disaster Risk Reduction Road Map (KSDRR) 2025-2030 on the International Day for Disaster Risk Reduction on Monday.

Karnataka is now the fifth state to launch the Disaster Risk Reduction roadmap, following Bihar, Andhra Pradesh, Tamil Nadu and Assam.

Noting that the state witnessed around Rs one lakh crore losses in the last five years due to natural disasters, Mullai Muhilan, Director, KSNDMC, said, through the KSDRR, the KSNDMC aims to prevent and tackle these disasters through systematic road map.

"The theme on this day is 'Fund Resilience, Not Disasters', and that is why this road map is a framework of existing solutions to reduce and prevent losses by mitigating floods, drought, earthquakes, heat waves and so on." P5

Court frames charges against Lalu, Tejashwi

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

LESS than a month before Bihar goes to polls, Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD) chief Lalu Prasad Yadav, his wife Rabri Devi, and son Tejashwi Yadav were on Monday charged by a Delhi court in the IRCTC hotels-for-land scam. The move comes as the party gears up for the two-phase Assembly elections on November 6 and 11, potentially adding a legal twist to the poll narrative.

Special Judge Vishal Gogne said that "there existed a prima facie case and grave suspicion regarding the land transfers involved in the matter." The judge framed common charges of criminal conspiracy and cheating against Rabri Devi and Tejashwi Yadav, while Lalu was additionally charged under provisions of the Prevention of Corruption Act.All three leaders pleaded not guilty and sought a trial.

The case, being pursued by the CBI, stems from alleged irregularities in granting contracts for two IRCTC hotels in Puri and Ranchi to a private firm, Sujata Hotels Private Limited. CBI alleged that the tender was manipulated, with conditions tweaked to favour the Patna-based private firm.

TUNNEL ROAD

DULT, expert panel list out negatives of project

Seek feasibility study before such a large investment is undertaken

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

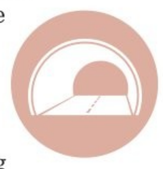
EXPERTS from the Indian Institute of Science and other urban planners have already expressed concern over the State Government's ambitious Tunnel Road project; now, government agencies are also raising drawbacks.

The Department of Urban Land Transport (DULT) has made some points in its report, after a detailed evaluation. The expert committee formed by the government in April 2025, headed by BMRCL's Executive Director, Civil, Siddanagouda Hegaraddi, in its report to the Urban Development Department, also pointed out the negatives and listed recommendations.

The DULT report stated: "The objective of the proposed North-South tunnel road does not align with the objectives and goals of the approved Comprehensive Mobility Plan for Bengaluru, or Climate Action Plan of BBMP (now GBA) or National Urban Transport policy of the Government of India (development of mobility solutions in urban areas)."

The DULT team suggested alternatives and short-length strategic alignments where such tunnels could play a critical role in improving connectivity, like along the Outer Ring Road or Peripheral Ring Road, where land acquisition cost can be reduced and private investment tapped. As development density is low along the PRR alignment, tunnel construction may be more feasible with lower risk.

DULT pointed out that since the state and BBMP lack the experience to implement such deep tunnels -- 14.5m twin tube -- it is pertinent that civic authorities undertake a detailed feasibility study before taking up such a large investment proposal.



The department also noted that origin-destination surveys were omitted in the feasibility report. It is essential to estimate travel demand along the corridor by assessing the proportion of traffic that is facilitated. For example, all traffic passing through Hebbal with destination before Majestic would not use the tunnel, and continue at the surface level as tunnel configuration (first exit point proposed at Hudson Circle) will not be convenient. It is also important to estimate the segmental demand along the corridor. Ascertaining travel time is also important to determine the number of entry and exit lanes, width, land acquisition and toll collection. It should be determined if an alternative like light rail or elevated guided bus system will better serve the demand the North-South corridor, DULT said. "In the proposed alignment, a conflict between rajakaluve feeding Hebbal Lake and tunnel alignment (ramp at Hebbal) is observed. Tunnel construction may have an impact on the surface and underground water bodies. A detailed Environmental Impact Assessment covering these aspects is crucial," DULT quoted in the report.

Hegaraddi flagged traffic issues and environmental concerns. The committee noted that positioning one of the shafts within Lalbagh area needed re-examination. He also pointed to traffic congestion at the ramps, access concerns during vehicle breakdown and shifting of congestion from one location to the other.

Sathya Arikutharam, a traffic expert who made an independent comparative analysis of the reports, pointed to various anomalies in completion of the tunnel road project. "BBMP overlooked the fact that the selected DPR consultant was the only bidder, and was also banned by Jammu and Kashmir Power Corporation Ltd at the time of tendering. This makes it clear that BBMP pursued the project with unusual vigour and wasn't too keen to wait for BMLTA's review and approval," Arikutharam said.

Panel flags 'unrealistic' Hebbal SWD diversion in Tunnel Road DPR

INDRA S @ Bengaluru

AN expert committee appointed by the state government to review the Detailed Project Report (DPR) of the proposed Tunnel Road project has found the planned diversion of the Hebbal nala – stormwater drain (SWD) - "unrealistic."

Experts also raised concerns over the committee's findings, noting the absence of hydraulic design calculations and cross-drainage drawings for the downstream section near the Hebbal tank weir.

The committee observed that the existing nala downstream of the Hebbal tank weir is proposed to be diverted through a U-turn with a long detour towards the airport — an alignment it deemed unfeasible. It also noted that crucial hydraulic design calculations and drawings for the cross-drainage structure near the Hebbal Tank embankment were missing.

The committee recommended that detailed hydraulic calculations be carried out, considering a 100-year return flood period.

Environmental experts expressed further concern over the proposed design. Speaking to TNIE, environmentalist AN Yellappa Reddy said diverting natural drains could have lasting ecological and geological impacts. "When you impose changes on nature, you alter the land surface, use heavy machinery, and risk infiltration that contaminates groundwater. The existing nala already filters and recharges aquifers naturally," he said.

Reddy added that in a new soil profile, you lose the living organisms—the biota—that help filter and recharge groundwater. "It takes years for the biota to rebuild. Moving a nala disrupts this balance and can cause untreated sewage to leak vertically or laterally," he cautioned. "So, before any diversion, they must study the soil—its porosity, texture, and structure. It varies every few hundred metres", he added.

"Diversion of natural drains violates the Karnataka Town and Country Planning Act, municipal bye-laws, NGT/HC orders protecting rajakaluves (SWDs)", said Sandeep Anirudhan, convenor of Bengaluru Townhall.

He added, "Apart from violating operative laws, the step could lead to various negative outcomes such as backflow and flooding, erosion, pollution and contamination of lakes downstream, loss of habitat for flora and fauna, infiltration into aquifers, etc."

Bihar leaders making a trip to B'luru to woo migrant workers

MOHAMMED YACOOB @ Bengaluru

AS the dates for Bihar elections are out, parties from that state are getting ready to draw more voters from Karnataka, especially Bengaluru, where thousands of Biharis have settled down.

Leaders like Manoj Bharathi from Jan Suraaj Party, founded by poll strategist Prashant Kishor, and Manoj Tiwari, BJP MP, were camping at Hebbal, Vidyaranyapura and surrounding areas, where a large number of Biharis stay and appealed to them to cast their vote.

Ram Keval Singh, a representative of Siddharth Sanskriti Samiti -- a Bihar-based association in Karnataka, said that unlike last time, around 15 lakh Biharis staying in Karnataka want a change in Bihar's political landscape as there has been no development in that state. Singh said most of the Biharis are in Bengaluru compared to other parts of the state, and they have been advised to vote for Bihar's future.

He said Bihar will again favour a regional party, but who will be voted to power is a mystery. Though liquor is banned in the state, it is found in homes, which is a worrying trend, he added.

Another representative from the Samiti said that many youth come to Bengaluru from Bihar and work in the construction industry on daily wages. Had successive governments in Bihar had worked for progress and development, these youth would not have migrated.

More leaders are expected to come to Karnataka ahead of two-phase Bihar elections on November 6 and 11.

Legal veteran threatens to file PIL to get roads fixed

BANSY KALAPPA @ Bengaluru

BENGALURU'S crumbling roads have turned commuting into a civic nightmare, and 91-year-old legal veteran KN Subba Reddy is ready to drag the government to court.

Reddy, former BJP MLA and eight-time Advocates' Association president, told TNIE, "The condition of roads in Bengaluru is so bad I will file a PIL in about a week's time." This isn't just a warning -- years ago, his PIL led to the Karnataka High Court, under then Chief Justice NK Sodhi, forming a high-powered committee to monitor city roads. Pothole repairs were done under strict Indian Road Congress norms and civic agencies were held accountable. Civic experts had called it the golden period in Bengaluru's road history, because the number of potholes dropped to a bare minimum, and the city's roads in the post 2004 period earned accolades.

Due to delayed white-topping works on Mosque Road in Fraser Town, pedestrians and shopkeepers have been facing problems for a couple of months | SHASHIDHAR BYRAPPA

Now the IT-BT capital tells a different story -- badly cratered road stretches, sloppy repairs, and mounting public anger. BJP state president BY Vijayendra made a stinging jab: "The issue isn't potholes on roads, it's roads inside potholes." His party has turned civic outrage into a political rallying point, with senior leaders slamming the government's "utter neglect".

On September 24, the BJP held statewide protests -- from pothole-filling drives in Yelahanka, Basavanagudi and Mahalakshmi Layout to road blockades across Karnataka. Many business leaders joined the chorus, branding the situation "a great shame" and sign of administrative failure.

DCM DK Shivakumar had countered it by blaming BJP's "misrule" for the mess, claiming 13,000+ potholes had been filled since Congress took office. He announced Rs 750-crore allocation and set October 31 as the deadline for repairs, but experts say the government may not be able to repair even a portion of the city's roads in the three weeks left. In the past few months, there is a surge in road accident deaths linked to poor roads and potholes, leading to visible anger against the government. Union minister HD Kumaraswamy termed it a "sacrifice for Congress commission" and blamed brazen corruption in contracts.

AAP leader Prithvi Reddy said, "The Congress came to power accusing the BJP of 40% commission, but now it is said corruption is more. How can you have good roads when only a portion of money goes into building roads."

GEMINI (May 21 - June 21)
It's OK to do the easy thing, and today it will be more productive than anything that feels like forced striving. You'll enjoy an activity that seems, on the surface, to be difficult. But this is not about nose-to-the-grindstone work. It's about puzzles and creative engagement.

CANCER (June 22 - July 22)

Adventure doesn't always mean travel. Curiosity is enough today. Ask a new question, try a new recipe, follow a different path on your walk, and the change of scenery refreshes your spirit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
You're brilliant! But too many ideas can scatter your focus. Capture them in one place -- a notebook, a voice memo -- and keep moving. Collect now, sort later. You'll thank yourself for creating a treasure chest of gems.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
How you know you're too comfortable? You're bored more than curious, set on "autopilot" as you do things without asking why. If the scene feels safe, flat and uninteresting, you'll jolt yourself awake by doing the opposite of what's expected.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - Mar 20)
You'll have no trouble making money. Keeping it is trickier. Ad-free environments help with this. Why make yourself vulnerable to marketers who will make you feel like you need things you didn't even know about before you saw the ad?

A 17-year-old Class 12 science student of Clarence High School, a diving champion at senior state level, fell to his death from the second floor of the school building premises while the morning assembly was on, on Monday morning.

The incident happened around 8.20 am, 10 minutes after the student was dropped by his father at the school located on Pottery Road in Richards Town. The student, Aaryn Moses Vyas, was immediately shifted to a nearby private hospital and subsequently to another hospital for advanced care. Aaryn succumbed while undergoing treatment.

A police officer said that the CCTV at the school premises showed Aaryn jumping from the second floor of the Carey Block of the school building. "We suspect that it is a case of suicide. The incident happened during the school assembly. His father, Moses Ketan H Vyas, an official with the Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) Revenue Department, has filed a complaint. He has not blamed anybody in the complaint. The exact reason for the incident is yet to be established."

The officer added: "No death note has been found and we are checking if the boy has left any note in digital form. Since it happened right in front of other students they are being counselled by the school counsellors. It is said that the boy was advised by his father to focus more on swimming."

17-year-old boy drowns in lake on city outskirts

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

A 17-year-old boy drowned in Kithanahalli Lake on the outskirts of Bengaluru on Sunday, around 7 pm. The incident happened under the Madanayakanahalli police limits.

The deceased has been identified as Pruthvik (17), a resident of Kaveripura in Kamakshipalya and a first-year Pre-University (PU) commerce student at a private college in Rajajinagar.

According to the police, on Sunday, Pruthvik and five of his friends had gone to Kithanahalli Lake. While his friends entered the water, Pruthvik, who did not know how to swim, initially stayed back. However, his friends allegedly persuaded him to get into the water. Soon after entering the lake, he began to drown. Seeing this, his friends panicked and fled the spot. Later, they alerted the locals, and the police were informed around 8 pm. On Monday, fire and emergency services personnel retrieved the body and sent it for post-mortem, the police said.

The police added that Pruthvik's parents have filed a complaint alleging suspicious circumstances surrounding his death. A case has been registered under Section 194 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), and his friends will be questioned.

The two assailants have been identified as Sikanthar, the mechanic, and his friend Janardhan Achary.

Though the incident occurred on Friday, it came to light on Monday. Sources said that when the woman was walking on the road, Sikanthar stopped near her and offered to drop her to her village. When she climbed on the two-wheeler, he took her to an isolated placed. He then called Janardhan to the spot and both men raped her.

The two assailants then dropped near her village and sped away.

Order comes amid row over Priyank calling for ban on RSS activities on govt, public premises

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bagalkot

KARNATAKA Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Monday said that he has asked the state Chief Secretary to study Tamil Nadu government's actions on banning RSS activities on government premises.

Siddaramaiah was speaking to reporters after participating in Sarvadharma Mahasangama (religious harmony) conference at Bandigani Mutt in Rabkavi Banhatti taluk of Bagalkot district. The CM's statement comes amid a political furore over his cabinet minister Priyank Kharge calling for a ban on RSS activities on government and public premises. "The RSS is using government premises for its activities. Tamil Nadu has already restricted such activities, and our officials have been asked to examine the matter," the CM said.

Referring to Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar's statement on a possible cabinet reshuffle, Siddaramaiah clarified that the opinion of party MLAs and the high command's decision are crucial in such matters. "There is no connection between the cabinet reshuffle and dinner meeting (with ministers on Monday). There will be no revolution in November," he CM said.

On the high drama reported between Shivakumar and BJP MLA Munirathna during the 'Bengaluru Nadige' event in Bengaluru on Sunday, Siddaramaiah said that he was not aware whether the MLA was invited for the event or not.

The CM also reiterated that the Upper Krishna Project Phase 3 would be completed within the next four years with adequate funding.

On representation for the Valmiki community in his cabinet, Siddaramaiah said that the matter would be considered during the next reshuffle. "The MLAs, who resigned, have not been removed by the government. The issue of Valmiki representation will be reviewed," he said.

Earlier addressing the gathering, the CM regretted the incident of an advocate hurling a shoe at the Chief Justice of India BR Gavai. He called the advocate a "Sanatani" who does not believe in equality.

Siddaramaiah appealed to the people not to believe in superstition and to believe in scientific temper. "This was said by Basavanna and Buddha. They also advocate the need to remove social, educational, gender, and economic inequality. No religion teaches hatred, but, here, in the name of religion, one person hurls a shoe at CJI," he said, adding that everyone must respect the religion of each other.

'Farmers devastated, Priyank busy writing letter'

Leader of Opposition in the Assembly R Ashoka said farmers in North Karnataka, including Kalaburagi, are devastated by the floods. "Farmers are taking to the streets to protest and go on a bandh, demanding declaration of a green drought, compensation of Rs 25,000 per acre, and a loan waiver. Instead of addressing these issues, Kharge is busy writing a letter to the CM about RSS," he alleged.

SLUGFEST CONTINUES

A new distraction tactic: Vijayendra

Karnataka BJP President BY Vijayendra posted on his 'X' account: "Fresh out of a 'Dinner Politics' meeting and reprimanded for your zero performance — both in your Ministry and in your own Kalaburagi constituency — you've clearly found a new distraction tactic: talk about the RSS!" He also said no amount of RSS-bashing will wash away the corruption and incompetence of his (Kharge)'s government, or growing public outrage over the collapsing infrastructure in Namma Bengaluru and across Karnataka.

Row over Kharge visiting RSS event

The BJP state unit social media handle posted a photo of AICC President and then Home Minister Mallikarjun Kharge visiting RSS's Samarasa Sangama in 2002 in Bengaluru. Priyank Kharge hit back at the BJP, stating, "Mallikarjun Kharge visited the RSS event site after chairing a peace committee meeting with officials and representatives of all communities, to caution your people against disturbing law and order. If you recall correctly, he made it clear: either abide by the law of the land or be prepared to face the consequences."

Former PM and Rajya Sabha member HD Deve Gowda was discharged from Manipal Hospital in Bengaluru on Monday after a week-long battle with fever and a urinary tract infection. "By God's grace, my health has stabilised," Gowda said, expressing gratitude to the doctors, who treated him, and supporters who prayed for his recovery. The JDS supremo promised a quick return to his public duties. Dr Sudarshan Ballal, Chairman of Manipal Hospital, confirmed that Gowda, admitted on October 6, was treated by a team of specialists and left in stable condition. Gowda has been advised strict rest. Meanwhile, a BJP delegation comprising Leader of Opposition in the Assembly R Ashoka and legislators met Gowda at his residence

Priyank's anti-RSS rhetoric part of Congress' grand Bihar election plan?

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI @ Bengaluru

WHILE IT/BT and RDPR Minister Priyank Kharge requesting Chief Minister Siddaramaiah to ban activities of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) on government premises is being viewed as political rhetoric, analysts also see some electoral calculations behind it.

Ahead of the Bihar assembly polls in mid-November, the grand old party appears to be setting a narrative against the BJP from Karnataka, and has already grabbed national attention. Besides, Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi launched his 'Vote Chori' campaign from Bengaluru and continued it with 'Voter Adhikar Yatra' in Bihar.

"Unless there is a direction from the party high command, Priyank Kharge would not have written a letter to the CM, who has asked the chief secretary to study the Tamil Nadu government's action against the RSS. It is an indication that he is serious about Priyank's letter," remarked a Congress leader, adding that any move to ban RSS activities is likely to impact the Bihar polls.

The timing of Priyank's letter coincides with the Bihar polls, where Congress is an ally of Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD). RJD leader and former Bihar CM Lalu Prasad is a known anti-BJP and RSS campaigner. When RJD emerged as the single largest party in 2015, Lalu had attributed it to RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat issuing a statement that the reservation policy should be reviewed, recalled political analyst Kiran MS. "It had an impact as the RSS itself made that statement, but setting a narrative from Karnataka is unlikely to impact Bihar elections," he added.

Yet, polarising a considerable chunk of Muslim voters towards the Congress-RJD alliance, and weaning them away from the JDU, might be part of a grand scheme of things, say analysts. Lalu will attract the Yadav vote, Kharge the Dalit vote, and if Muslims move towards the alliance, it will have an edge over the BJP-JDU bloc.

Ahead of the 2023 assembly polls in Karnataka, the Congress had promised to ban the Bajrang Dal, though the government is yet to take a call on it. A similar plan could be in the pipeline for the Bihar polls, another analyst opined.

Noted political scientist Dr Sandeep Shastri was sceptical that Priyank's letter would help Congress and its allies. "I am not too sure how relevant it is in Bihar, given that Congress is a junior partner in the alliance. Key issues will be SIR, caste, development priorities, youth vote and women's vote," he claimed. "The difference between BJP and its political opponents on the role of the RSS, and BJP's relationship with the organisation is not new. This issue will evoke strong support or opposition among voters, depending on where they stand on the political spectrum," he elaborated.

Letter written with prejudiced mindset, says Bellad

DHARWAD: Deputy Leader of the Opposition in the Assembly Arvind Bellad came down heavily on IT/BT and RDPR Minister Priyank Kharge for his recent comment on the RSS. Bellad said that Priyank, who wrote to Chief Minister Siddaramaiah requesting a ban on RSS activities on government premises, should first know about the organisation. The letter has been written with a prejudiced mindset to get appreciation from senior Congress leaders, the BJP leader said. "I ask Priyank to read about RSS once and know about its activities. The minister's behaviour is extreme leftist. Instead of seeking a ban on RSS activities, he should have written seeking funds for his region's development. Voters there are waiting for development," he added.

Didn't mock guarantees: Deshpande

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Haliyal (Uttara Kannada district)

A day after allegedly mocking the five guarantee schemes of the state government, senior Congress leader and chairman of the Administration Reforms Commission, RV Deshpande, on Monday said he did not speak against the schemes, but appreciated them.

At an event in Dandeli on Sunday, he told the audience, "You get Rs 2,000. It is a lottery for all of you. Whenever a husband speaks something, she display Rs 2,000 given by the government. What kind of God (Paramatma) is Siddaramaiah? Buses are free for women. You go to Dharwad, Belagavi and Saudatti Yelamma. What about men? They have nothing and nothing to do. You used to get 5 kilos of rice per person, now it has been increased to 10 kg. Take it and sell it. Now there will be Indira kit. You will get dal, oil and coconut. Which cooking oil you will get? Groundnut or coconut?"

Even as people were laughing, he said, "What all Siddaramaiah is giving you, we ourselves don't know. We stay close to him, but we are unaware of what he is planning. He is doing magic. If I was a chief minister, I would have never given so much. His welfare schemes are indeed very helpful to the poor. He is giving everything."

On Monday, he issued a statement saying, "I appreciated the five guarantee schemes. Siddaramaiah is an experienced leader and has brought these schemes with a concern for the poor people. My words have been misunderstood."

It is learnt that Siddaramaiah called up Deshpande after news reports appeared about his comments on the guarantee schemes. Deshpande reportedly denied the reports and told the CM that he will come to Bengaluru and give an explanation. Deshpande, known to be a close friend of Siddaramaiah, was already on his way to Bengaluru on Monday.

Siddu, DKS receive hoax bomb threat

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

KARNATAKA Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar on Saturday received an email threatening to blow up their houses.

The email stated that four RDX had been planted in their houses. After a thorough search, it was declared a hoax bomb threat. According to the police, the email was sent by one Aarna Ashwin Shekher (aarna.ashwinshekher@outlook.com) to the official email ID of CM of Karnataka (cm.kar@nic.in) and DCM's personal email ID dkshivakumar1@gmail.com around 4.20 am.

The sender stated that "RDX and IED explosives have been placed in the houses of the Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister of Karnataka, and they will be detonated remotely."

The Bomb Detection and Disposal Squad and the dog squad, which searched the houses of the CM and DCM, found nothing.

A suo motu case has been registered against Aarna Ashwin Shekher under Sections 351(4) (criminal intimidation) and 353(1)(b) (statements conducing to public mischief) of Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), the police said.

The email might have originated from Tamil Nadu. A technical analysis is on to trace the IP address used to send the message. Efforts are on to trace the accused, a senior police officer said.

Be pro-people, bring good name: CM to ministers

"It has been two-and-a-half years since the government was formed. Bring reforms in your departments as people have discarded BJP for its misadministration and given power to us. The government should be pro-people and you should work along these lines and bring a good name to your departments," Chief Minister Siddaramaiah is said to have suggested to his ministers.

They also discussed roles they need to play, if any, in the Bihar Assembly elections if the party high command assigns them tasks, the sources said. But a minister said that except giving directions to ministers from Bengaluru to involve in the polls of five corporations under Greater Bengaluru Authority, and asking other ministers to focus on zilla and taluk panchayat polls, nothing else was discussed at the dinner.

But informed sources said tabling of an order to ban RSS activities on the government premises in the cabinet was also discussed.

Tackling opposition parties, especially BJP, more effectively on certain issues, including their criticism of the government over the five guarantees, was also discussed. It is said that the Chief Minister told ministers that though there was a setback on development work initially after the five guarantees were implemented, the government has been sustaining with the schemes as more avenues to generate revenue were found. He promised more grants for development, they said.

Siddaramaiah also held one-on-one talks with certain ministers after dinner.

Confirming this, Labour Minister Santosh Lad told reporters that the Chief Minister spoke about developments in his department. "The CM took the opinions of individual ministers and I gave details of my department. Others had their own take," he said, refusing to divulge more.

"There was ragi mudde, gravy, chicken, mutton, idlis and all in the menu," the minister said in jest.

The CM also spoke to Forest Minister Eshwar Khandre one on one, sources said.

BMTC must be strengthened, not dismantled, say commuters

'Allowing private bus service will put a financial burden on the common man'

RASHMI PATIL @ Bengaluru

COMMUTERS and activists have opposed former Infosys CFO T V Mohandas Pai's suggestion that the Bengaluru Metropolitan Transport Corporation (BMTC) should be dismantled, saying that allowing private bus service will put a financial burden on the common man.

"Allowing private buses on roads will cause trouble for people. Private buses will ply on routes that are more profitable to them, ignoring the routes where fewer people commute in buses. BMTC buses ply on all routes irrespective of the percentage of commuters available on different routes," Shaheen Shasa, a member of Bengaluru Bus Prayanikara Vedike (BBPV), said.

"I agree that BMTC services have their drawbacks. But I believe that they can be fixed by changing policies and increasing investments. These shortfalls in the BMTC occur because the government is not investing enough in the public sector. Currently, there is a GCC model in the transport services where buses are contracted from private operators, including conductors and drivers. Through the GCC model, both private and government sectors are making good money."

She added that if BMTC is dismantled, in the long run, the common public will be left at the mercy of private bus operators. "We will not be able to hold them accountable for the quality of their service. There is no need to privatise the bus service. What's needed is to improve the services that exist."

Vinay Sreenivas, activist at the Alternative Law Forum, has been actively working in making urban transport better. He said, "BJP MP Tejasvi Surya supported the idea of dismantling BMTC services. However, it was during the BJP regime in the state that BMTC services were weakened. They failed to recruit enough staff or add more buses to the fleet. They deliberately weakened the transport utility and are now calling it a failed organisation."

He also stressed that BMTC services must be improved by making certain changes. "If the government decides to dismantle it, then it will be the most disastrous decision. Private players will take routes with more commuters, leaving BMTC with routes that have fewer commuters. We must ask for more support from the government, traffic police, add more buses and build bus lanes to make it easier for commuters."

Prathiba R, member of Karnataka Garment Workers Association, strongly opposed the idea of bringing private buses and dismantling BMTC services. She said, "A person who has never travelled in a BMTC bus can only get these kind of ideas. Allowing private buses will be a burden to the garment workers and working-class labourers. A garment worker earns only Rs 12,800 per month and over 4 lakh women working in the garment sector in Karnataka. When inflation is at an all-time high, private buses and travel charges will only add to our financial burden. Let the government add more buses to the existing fleet, but not dismantle BMTC and allow private buses."

MUHILAN added, "The road map includes vulnerability profile of Karnataka, DRR developments, initiatives taken in the state, roles and responsibilities of key stakeholders as defined in the National Disaster Management Act 2005, proposed actions and financial arrangements." The roles and responsibilities, work implementation in the road map are based on three major milestones divided to achieve in five years.

All departments, gram panchayats have prepared disaster management plans with latest data as baseline information. In milestone 2 for the year 2027-28, the road map mentions that the state has to collaborate and partner with various stake holders from local to global level. In milestone 3, for the year 2029-30, it mentions reducing infrastructure damage, human and animal deaths, casualties by 75%.

Muhilan said, "Currently, KSNDMC has applications including Varuna Mitra, dedicated mainly to providing weather forecast to farmers across the state. Similarly, we have Megha Sandesha, a mobile app developed in collaboration with the Indian Institute of Science. This app was created to mitigate urban floods and it provides information to various government bodies especially BWSSB, and others. We are still working on this app to provide information and data to BDA, GBA on the areas that might flood in the future. They can use this data before giving clearance to buildings of layouts."

NCW meet may dispose of 262 cases

Bengaluru: A two-day "Mahila Maha Jansunwai" meet to address the grievances of women began here on Monday. The meeting being held by the National Commission for Women (NCW) is likely to dispose of 262 cases. According to NCW chairperson Vijaya Kishor Rahatkar, such meetings will be held in other cities and towns of the state. "We strive to serve women in distress. There are women here who cannot take their problems to Delhi. So, we decided to come here to address their problems," she said. Rahatkar said the commission is close to holding its 100th "Jansunwai" after its launch four months ago. Chairperson of Karnataka State Commission for Women (KSCW) Dr Nagalakshmi said KSCW works closely with the police department. The state government has been receptive to the commission's recommendations. The recently declared menstrual leave policy is an example of this.

HC directs CAG to conduct audit of UAS-Dharwad

'If irregularity is found, action must be taken in accordance with law'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

IN THE HC

THE Karnataka High Court directed the Comptroller and Auditor General (Karnataka) to carry out a financial audit of the University of Agricultural Sciences (UAS), Dharwad, from 2018 to 2025. If any irregularities or financial mismanagement are found during the audit, action should be taken in accordance with the law, the high court added.

Justice Suraj Govindaraj passed the order while dismissing the petition filed by Shivaputra M Honnalli, who has been the in-charge Comptroller of UAS since June 2, 2018, questioning the posting of Pooja Doddamani in his place.

The court also directed the vice- chancellor (VC) to prepare a panel of not less than three persons, being officers of the cadre of Joint Comptroller of State Accounts Department or an officer of the Rank of Deputy Accountant General of Audit and Accounts Department and place the same before the Board of Management. If the Board of Management accept any of the candidates in the panel, the VC could appoint the approved candidate as the Comptroller. Until then, Pooja Doddamani should discharge her duties as the in-charge Comptroller, strictly in accordance with law, the court said.

Holding that Pooja also does not satisfy the required qualification, the court said that neither the appointment of the petitioner, Shivaputra, nor Pooja was proper and correct as per the provisions of the UAS Act, 2009.

The court noted that Section 30 of the Act indicates that the officers of the varsity should be appointed by the VC. However, on repeated enquiry, no documents have been placed to justify that the petitioner is qualified. He does not belong to the cadre of Joint Comptroller of the State Accounts Department or an officer of the rank of Deputy Accountant General of the Audit and Accounts Department. Without any approval of the Board of Management, the VC appointed the petitioner as an in-charge Comptroller. Thus, the in-charge arrangement could only extend for six months and not longer, the court observed.

The court also stated that, admittedly, in the present matter, the petitioner has been discharging the in-charge arrangements from 2018 and has been challenging any other appointment made by the state to his place, apparently with the active support of the VC.

Also, the appointment of the Comptroller is restricted to four years. It is rather shocking that the petitioner, who was appointed as an in-charge Comptroller, could not have been in charge for more than six months at the most. Even if a Comptroller is appointed by following a procedure, he or she should not be allowed more than four years. However, the petitioner has been discharged as a Comptroller from 2018 till now for nearly seven years. This aspect does not inspire confidence and, in fact, is suspicious. Therefore, there is required to be an audit, the court said.

Stampede: TVK, AIADMK hail SC verdict

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Chennai

THE Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK) general secretary for election campaign management Aadhav Arjuna on Monday reiterated his party's belief that there was a "conspiracy" behind the Karur stampede in which 41 people were killed.

Welcoming the Supreme Court's verdict on transferring the probe into the stampede to the CBI based on a batch of petitions, Arjuna said the apex court has exposed the flaws in the Madras High Court's earlier order constituting an SIT team of Tamil Nadu police. He said his party would continue to stand with the families who lost their loved ones in the tragedy.

He further alleged that the DMK government is attempting to use the tragedy to paralyse his party, by framing false cases against its functionaries.

AIADMK general secretary Edappadi K Palaniswami said the judgment upheld the principle "a fair and impartial investigation is the right of the people". PMK president Anbumani Ramadoss described the verdict as timely and essential, noting that several doubts had been raised about possible conspiracies behind the tragedy. BJP state president Nainar Nagenthran expressed gratitude to the SC for considering the party's demand for a CBI inquiry.

Meanwhile, Naam Tamilar Katchi (NTK) leader Seeman strongly opposed the transfer of the probe to CBI, calling it an affront to Tamil Nadu's autonomy and the credibility of its police force.

KOCHI SCHOOL SHUT FOR 2 DAYS AFTER ROW OVER STUDENT WEARING HIJAB

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Kochi

AN unaided school in Kochi, affiliated to the CBSE, was forced to announce a holiday for two days after the parent of a girl student and a group of people allegedly trespassed onto its premises and created a ruckus, demanding that his daughter is allowed to wear a hijab. Considering a writ petition filed by the school management, the Kerala High Court ordered that law and order be maintained.

According to Heleena Alby, principal of St Rita's Public School in Palluruthy, Ernakulam, the student who was admitted to Class VIII in June 2025, had been attending classes wearing the school uniform for the past four months. But on October 7, the student came to school wearing a head scarf, and when her teacher reminded her of the need to adhere to the uniform, she insisted that it cannot be removed.

The teacher summoned the parent, who agreed to adhere to school rules. However, the girl was absent for the next two days and came to school wearing the headscarf on October 10. She was accompanied by her father and a few others who allegedly manhandled the security personnel and verbally abused the principal, teachers and members of the PTA.

"A group of people assembled outside the school gate shouting slogans and creating an atmosphere of intimidation and fear. The mob activity occurred when pre-KG students were arriving and resulted in panic and emotional distress among the small children who began to cry," said the petition filed by the school before the High Court. Refuting the allegations of the school management, P M Anas, father of the girl student, told TNIE that his daughter was discriminated against by the teachers.

DIGITAL JOB MATCHING MUST FACE REAL-WORLD LABOUR CHALLENGES

THE draft Shram Shakti Niti 2025 released recently for public consultation marks a critical shift, proposing that the labour and employment ministry move beyond its regulatory role to act as a facilitator of employment. It envisions the ministry using digital tools to connect workers with jobs and align their skills with industry needs. This reflects recognition that employment cannot rely on government recruitment alone, that the State must support private-sector job creation through infrastructure, oversight, and digital assistance. The National Career Service platform is expected to serve as the public portal integrating job matching, skill training, and verification of worker credentials.

A major focus is on informal, gig, and rural workers, who make up more than 80 percent of India's workforce. Initiatives such as education-to-employment 'career lounges' aim to involve private industry in linking training to opportunities. Yet the ministry's ability to facilitate employment at scale remains largely untested. While digital systems work in cities, many informal and seasonal migrant workers face limited internet access, lack proper documents, and have little awareness of the available schemes. Previous attempts to unify platforms such as the Employees' Provident Fund Organisation, Employees' State Insurance Corporation, and e-SHRAM were slowed by weak coordination and fragmented databases. Some state-level examples offer lessons: Kerala's district-based registration and welfare mechanisms have achieved wider coverage of informal labour through on-ground coordination supported by digital tracking.

Digital solutions would not address some deeper structural challenges in India's labour market. Weak enforcement of labour rights and insufficient public investment in health, education, and skilling have prevented the development of a capable and secure workforce. Only a small segment of the formal sector benefits from statutory protections, while the majority remain in insecure, informal employment. Migrant workers are the most vulnerable, concentrated in low-wage, high-risk jobs with minimal regulatory oversight. Recruitment agents behaving as intermediaries further limit their bargaining power, reinforcing informality. Gender inclusion is another critical gap. The policy aims to raise women's workforce participation to 35 percent by 2030, but this goal is hard to reach when childcare is scarce, mobility unsafe, and part-time or flexible jobs are largely limited to metros. For Shram Shakti Niti to succeed, it will need more than digital platforms. It must address structural inequalities, bridge the digital divide, and build real institutions and support systems on the ground.

NAME MORE STANDS AFTER WOMEN CRICKET GREATS

SUNDAY will go down as a red-letter day in women's cricketing history for more reasons than one. Alyssa Healy of Australia accomplished the greatest run chase in women's one-day cricket against India at Visakhapatnam. If the ending of the World Cup match was awe-inspiring, its beginning at the YSR Reddy Andhra Cricket Association-VDCA stadium was about grateful remembrance. For only the third time in India, a stadium got stands and gates named after legendary women cricketers—a stand after former India captain Mithali Raj and a gate after Andhra Pradesh and India wicketkeeper-batter R Kalpana. Only two other venues in the country have honoured women cricketers in such a manner. In 2017, the Delhi District Cricket Association named two gates at what was then called the Feroz Shah Kotla stadium after former captain Anjum Chopra. Eight years down the line, the Cricket Association of Bengal honoured former captain and legendary pacer Jhulan Goswami with a stand at the Eden Gardens.

One cannot forget the hard work of legends who helped the women's game grow despite a severe shortage of money and infrastructure. Inscribing their names permanently at facilities to be used by fans and cricketers can instil pride and act as a great motivator. However, the Indian cricket board and its state affiliates can surely do more. Last year, selector Venkatacher Kalpana raised the issue that Shantha Rangaswamy, India's first women's team captain, was not on the list of legends being honoured with stands at Bengaluru's M Chinnaswamy stadium. Last week, several former India and Mumbai cricketers wrote to the Mumbai Cricket Association urging to name a stand after ex-captain Diana Edulji. Smriti Mandhana, vice-captain of the present team, has added her voice to the growing demand.

Such memorialising through naming is a norm in India and men have shared most of the honours. However, it must be noted that as the women's game has experienced a significant upward trend in recent years, so has the fame of some of its players. This is evident from the crowds thronging the Women's World Cup venues—though the stadiums are not full, their numbers are significantly larger than in earlier years. Hopefully, as the World Cup attracts more attention as it rolls towards the semifinals, the Indian cricket board and state units will consider expanding the inclusive trend in naming.

QUICK TAKE

ROLLING OUT AI

ARTIFICAL intelligence is such a strong flavour of the season that a sprinkling of any offering with the term seems to impart zest. So the Centre's announcement that AI would be incorporated into class 3 curriculums from the 2026-27 academic year went down without a murmur. More than 18,000 schools already offer 15-hour AI skill modules from class 6; it's an optional subject for classes 9-12. What would AI for class 3 students look like? The announcement comes at the same time as the revelation that 1,04,125 schools across India have only one teacher. So the other question is about how these teachers would be trained along with their compatriots. A broader discussion first may serve the nation better.

In asymmetric conflicts, military superiority doesn't ensure strategic success. Israel's use of overwhelming force has bred resentment around the world. The Palestinian cause has been resurrected

THE Gaza war, now tapered into an awkward ceasefire, has left behind devastation beyond imagination. Israel fought with overwhelming force, Hamas remains battered but not erased, and the world once again confronts the familiar question that has shadowed the region for decades: who really gains when the dust settles? It may sound counterintuitive, but in the political and psychological sense, Hamas appears to have secured what strategists call 'perceptual victory', even as Gaza lies in ruins.

The October 2023 attack by Hamas was a meticulously planned but morally indefensible act of terror that shocked even those sympathetic to the Palestinian cause. The deliberate targeting of civilians is beyond justification. Hamas likely believed that only such a drastic act could revive global focus on a fading cause. With the Abraham Accords expanding and Saudi-Israel normalisation on the horizon, the Palestinian issue risked permanent marginalisation. Strategically, the perception was correct; the method, however, remains unacceptable to the civilised world.

For Israel, the response was shaped by two impulses. The first was the national need for retribution—a visceral reaction to the scale of the assault, necessary to preserve deterrence and restore confidence among its citizens. The second was political. Benjamin Netanyahu's survival depended on projecting absolute resolve. A restrained response would have been interpreted domestically as weakness and internationally as loss of moral ascendancy. Yet, the ferocity of the Israeli retaliation, which blurred the line between combatant and civilian, ended up achieving the reverse—moral erosion in the eyes of much of the world.

Had Israel opted for a more selective approach—differentiating clearly between Hamas's armed elements and Gaza's civilian population—the story might have been different. But even then, the outcome may not have served Israel's core objectives. Precision targeting alone could hardly dismantle an organisation deeply embedded in a social and religious network. In asymmetric warfare, the stronger side is always constrained by its strength. Ethical restraint can appear a weakness; overwhelming force breeds resentment. Israel faced an unenviable choice, as either path would have led to strategic frustration.

What followed was a campaign that achieved tactical success but strategic ambiguity. Hamas's command structures were disrupted but not destroyed. Its fighters melted away into the urban maze. Its political narrative, meanwhile, gained renewed currency. Images of devastation and humanitarian suffering flooded global consciousness, shifting public opinion in many countries away from Israel's narrative of self-defence. The international community's sympathy, initially with Israel, slowly tilted towards the Palestinian people. This shift was not about ideology, but about the human cost that became impossible to ignore.

The paradox of modern conflict is clear. Wars are judged less by territory gained and more by legitimacy sustained. Israel's moral authority, once grounded in its democratic ethos and history of persecution, now faces growing challenge. Much of the Global South views Gaza through the lens of excessive force, while younger Western audiences question Israel's proportionality. Hamas, though condemned for terror, gains indirectly from this erosion of Israel's moral standing.

This dynamic is not new. History shows weaker actors often extract long-term advantage from apparent defeat. In 1973, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat launched Operation Badr, also known as 'Sharara' or spark, knowing Egypt could not win a protracted war. Yet, by regaining limited ground and restoring Arab confidence, he transformed the political reality, paving the way for the Camp David Accords. The Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam in Sri Lanka were annihilated in 2009, yet their cause continues to echo across the Tamil diaspora. In both cases, physical defeat could not extinguish the emotional and political narrative. Hamas's endurance, despite ruin, follows a similar pattern.

The regional consequences are also significant. The war has disrupted the momentum of Arab-Israeli normalisation. Public anger in Arab capitals constrains governments from deepening ties with Israel. Iran's influence through Hezbollah, Houthis, and other proxies has gained new legitimacy under the banner of 'resistance'. Türkiye and Qatar have positioned themselves as interlocutors, expanding their diplomatic weight. For Pakistan and others in the Muslim world, the conflict has revived calls for solidarity that had long receded into rhetoric. A Muslim Nato is also being spoken of. The Palestinian question, once peripheral, is once again at the centre of global debate.

For Israel, the aftermath offers little comfort. The cost to its image, economy, and social cohesion is profound. Protests over hostages, divisions within its polity, and fatigue among its reservists point to a society strained by perpetual mobilisation. The strategic environment it faces now is not of its choosing: a hostile northern front, a restless West Bank, and diminishing international patience. The dream of absolute security remains elusive.

For Hamas and similar movements, the path ahead will be one of recalibration rather than retreat. They will rebuild quietly, drawing strength from symbolism rather than structure. In a decade or two, another generation may rise under the same banner, propelled by the same grievances. This is the enduring tragedy of the conflict—cycles of retribution that produce neither victory nor peace. Israel will live with neither full war nor genuine peace, while Gaza's people will remain trapped in despair.

The world must see this outcome not as a win for one side but as a collective failure of politics and humanity. Hamas's methods are indefensible; Israel's reaction proved counterproductive. The result is a temporary cessation of fighting, not a resolution. Yet, perception matters in geopolitics, and in that, Hamas has emerged as the side that forced the issue back to global attention. That is why, even amid destruction, it is viewed as the victor of this round—not for triumphing, but for enduring.

The Gaza war reaffirms a sobering truth. In the age of asymmetric conflict, wars are no longer decided solely by arms or alliances, but by narratives and endurance. Hamas may have paid an unbearable price and Israel may claim battlefield success, but neither has secured the future. The conflict pauses, not ends. As always in such situations, both sides lose—yet, by merely surviving, one side appears to win.

THE QUEER HISTORY OF 'QUEER'

SAAI SUDHARSAN SATHIYAMOORTHY

Advocate, Madras High Court

OVER the decades, as our constitutional courts came to be confronted with matters relating to homosexuality and the rights of persons from the third gender, the language employed by these courts evolved from clinical or derogatory to one of acceptance and affirmation. During this period, the natural meaning of the word 'queer', once used as a pejorative, has transformed into an inclusive umbrella identity, having been reclaimed by the LGBTQIA+ communities.

Equally, the evolution of the word's usage in today's constitutional jurisprudence represents a remarkable transformation from colonial criminalisation to constitutional affirmation, though its direct usage in judicial opinions still remains denotative, lexical and surprisingly limited.

From the early colonial period to the late 20th century, 'queer' was mostly restricted in usage in the context of 'strange or odd'. That's the sense in which it was used by the Madras High Court at one of the many proceedings related to the infamous liquidation of Travancore National and Quilon Bank (1941)—"it did strike him as queer". One of the very first constitutional cases to employ the word was S B Trading Co (1951), where the Calcutta High Court observed about different classes of tenants, "[t]hey are not similarly circumstanced individuals and if the effects are queer as indeed they are, even they cannot be said to infringe the constitutional guarantee of equal protection".

Decades later, when the Delhi High Court delivered the famous judgement in Naz Foundation (2009), 'queer' was employed once: "When everything associated with homosexuality is treated as bent, queer, repugnant, the whole gay and lesbian community is marked with deviate and perversity." In its judgement on the appeal, the Supreme Court chose not to employ the word at all, except while extracting the high court's judgement.

Thereafter, the Supreme Court in Navtej Singh Johar (2018) showed a pronounced alteration in its jurisprudential stance, using the word to note that the "LGBTIQ movements focused on... the interplay of oppressions arising from being both queer and lower class". It also quoted a judge of the High Court of Australia who found the word queer was being "sometimes used generically, usually by younger people, to include the members of all sexual minorities".

Thereafter, a significant change in attitude set in with the Supreme Court's judgement in Supriyo (2023), where the word is used liberally. In one footnote, the court even notes that the term "once pejoratively used to demean persons who engaged in 'deviant' sexual behaviour or gender expressions, has been reclaimed by activists as a way of expressing pride in their devalued and marginalised identities, challenging majoritarian hetero-normativity".

EXPRESS

As the meaning of the word 'queer' has evolved, so has its use in juridical language. Michel Foucault's ideas helped frame its acceptance as a social construct rather than an immutable category. Activists later broadened its scope to non-normative experiences

In a recent judgement, however, a division bench of the Madras High Court found the term discomforting. As the court correctly notes, dictionaries define queer as 'strange or odd' and the phrase 'queering one's pitch' means spoiling something. From the bench's standpoint, using terminology that inherently suggests abnormality to describe citizens seeking equal protection under law seems counterintuitive, even potentially harmful. This perspective reflects a broader judicial responsibility: ensuring that legal language affirms dignity rather than diminishing it. What the court's analysis doesn't capture is the powerful history of linguistic reclamation that has transformed 'queer' from a slur to a symbol of pride and resistance.

Identity in gay and lesbian theory has always been fraught. In the wake of the Stonewall movement in New York, openly gay and lesbian perspectives reshaped political, philosophical and literary debates—initially through feminist critiques of patriarchy—before coalescing into queer theory by the late 1980s.

Early essentialist models of lesbian and gay identity—defining sexuality by strict, supposedly universal traits—ended up excluding those who didn't fit the mould, erasing intersecting factors like race and ethnicity, and treating identity categories as fixed rather than historically and socially constructed.

Michel Foucault's examination of the historical construction of 'homosexuality' played a significant role in changing this. He argued that sexual identity arises from medical, legal, and social practices, rather than reflecting an innate category. His work underscores that modern sexual classifications are contingent inventions shaped by specific historical forces.

Queer theory contested the rigid definitions, showing how those supposed 'essences' excluded anyone whose experience—shaped by race, subcultural affiliation, or other differences—did not conform to the norm. It also challenged the idea that identity categories are timeless and immutable, instead highlighting the historical and social forces that morph them. By embracing 'queer' as an open-ended term—defined by its departure from whatever norm holds sway—queer theory and LGBTQIA+ communities have created room for a wide array of self-definitions. It reminds us that identity is something we construct, not something prescribed.

Thus, the court's discomfort with 'queer' reflects a deeper discomfort with any language that suggests deviation from a norm. But perhaps that's precisely why we should embrace it. It amounts to a rejection of the very concept of 'normal' and 'strange'. The court's approach should be celebrated—not as the final word, but as part of an ongoing conversation.

Says agreement should reignite Abraham Accords to create economic corridor, including Europe, US & India as well

'New West Asia, and a peaceful era beckons'

As part of this movement, having Saudi Arabia join the accords is a key factor. Others not included in original Abraham agreements, may have opportunity to join now – Egypt, Turkiye, Qatar, Syria, Iraq, Lebanon, and the Palestinians to name a few.

FIRST and foremost, Israel is united today by the joy of hostages' families coming together with their loved ones, returning from hell after two years of suffering as hostages in the hands of the terror organizations of Hamas and The Islamic Jihad in Gaza. We are also commemorating the loss of the innocent victims murdered in a barbarian invasion to Israel on October 7, 2023, and the heroes, who fought ever since to bring our hostages back home. There will be a long period of healing and rehabilitation. Israel has proven its strength, spirit and resilience and we are committed to put an end, once and for all, to any attempt to question our very existence.

This agreement was initiated and led by the United States of America headed by President Trump and gained overwhelming support around the world. This is the first step toward a greater set of agreements to change the reality in the Middle East. We hope that this first step will be the first step of a global partnership to end the era of terror in the region. We hope it will reignite the Abraham Accords with reinforcement of its mission – to create an economic corridor that will include Europe, Middle East, the US and hopefully India as well. In addition to ending terror, I believe more countries will join the Abraham Accords from the Arab and Muslim world.

As part of this movement, having Saudi Arabia join the accords is a key factor. Others not included in the original Abraham agreements, may have the opportunity to join in now – players such as Egypt, Turkiye, Qatar, Syria, Iraq, Lebanon, and the Palestinians to name a few.

This movement to improve the Middle East economy and drive growth and prosperity, may serve as a framework for a long-lasting peace including Israel and the Palestinians. I do hope there will be a solution, as both people will continue to live together, side by side. It will be either an ongoing series of wars and terror, or a partnership for a new beginning.

My hope is that this process started today will grow to a new Middle East, and a peaceful era. I do hope the US and the allies will continue to work together to make this dream come true. Last Saturday night, hundreds of thousands of Israelis attended the Hostages square to hear Steve Witkoff speak on behalf of President Trump alongside Jared Kushner and his wife Ivanka Trump. When Witkoff thanked Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu for his role in achieving the agreement – it was not well received by many who did not approve his way of leadership since October 7

Personally, I think that expressing their objection by just being silent, would send a clear message in a more respectful way.

'Hope Israel will abide by terms of Gaza peace plan'

A snapshot from Gaza after two years of constant war | AGENCIES

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

MANUEL Hassassian, Palestinian Ambassador to Denmark, Former Ambassador to the UK (2005-2018) We hope that israel will abide by the terms of the Gaza peace plan albeit it is ambiguous and lacks a timeline with no enforcing mechanisms and lacks sequencing with no monitoring and verifications let alone no details about the International force to control Gaza while under reconstruction and development.

The question of disarming Hamas is a sticky issue with no details to whom it will surrender its weapons. There are no enforcement mechanisms to do that so it is still ambiguous.

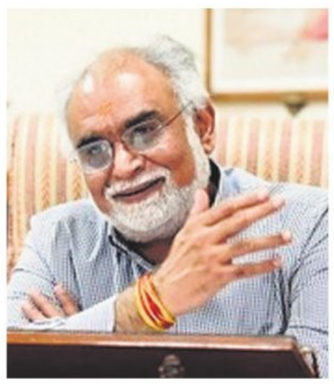
President Trump has no choice except to push for the two state solution. Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas will attend the international summit in Egypt on Monday alongside President Trump and other world leaders to finalise an agreement aimed at ending the war in Gaza.

He will push for the two state solution, for which we hope and expect support from other world leaders, especially from the Arab world and Islamic world.

'LACK HIGH-END DIGITAL TOOLS TO PRESERVE HISTORY'



FOR preserving India's history and culture archived in ancient documents and transcripts, tools required for high-quality digitisation are still not readily available, Sachchidanand Joshi, Member Secretary, the Executive and Academic Head of Indira Gandhi National Centre for the Arts (IGNCA), tells Parvez Sultan. Excerpts:

How do you see IGNCA's role evolving in the contemporary global scenario, particularly in light of Viksit Bharat 2047?
In the contemporary context and especially in line with the vision of Viksit Bharat 2047, culture must be seen as both the foundation and the force behind development. As our Prime Minister has said-- "Virasat bhi, Vikas bhi"—(heritage along with development). When development draws strength from our heritage, it becomes more productive, sustainable, and deeply rooted in our identity.

The government plans to institutionalise Gyan Bharatam. Your comment.
The National Mission for Manuscripts was originally initiated by IGNCA. A great deal of documentation and digitisation took place under IGNCA's leadership. Now, with the launch of Gyan Bharatam, the scope of this effort has been significantly expanded.

Do you see digitisation as a tool for preservation or cultural democratisation?
I would say it serves both purposes. Digitisation is, first of all, an essential preservation tool. When scholars or researchers want to study manuscripts, they are not always allowed to handle the original copies, as that can cause damage over time. So, digitisation provides a safe way to access and study these materials. At the same time, digitisation expands accessibility and also acts as a tool of cultural democratisation.

What's IGNCA's role in setting national standards for digital preservation and archiving of manuscripts?
One of our key initiatives was the National Cultural Audiovisual Archives (NCAA) project. We did extensive work on it, and it eventually became the world's first Trusted Digital Repository for audiovisual material, a recognition we received through formal certification. Building on that experience, we have also developed a set of Standard Operating Procedures for digital archiving, digital preservation, and related processes.

What are the biggest challenges in digitising ancient manuscripts?
There are several challenges, both technical and emotional. On the technical side, some of the advanced systems and tools required for high-quality digitisation are still not readily available in our country. We are, therefore, seeking assistance from external experts who can help us with the latest technologies and global best practices.

Another challenge is that even digital preservation is not entirely foolproof. A few years ago, microfilming was a safer long-term option. But it preserves only in monochrome, while digitisation captures the richness of colours and details. So, we are working on developing a foolproof digital repository that ensures both durability and quality.

There is also an emotional challenge. Many individuals or families who own manuscripts are reluctant to part with them because of sentimental attachment. They often fear that by handing over their manuscripts, they might lose ownership or recognition. People must understand that this is a national mission, aimed at safeguarding our collective heritage for future generations. The third major challenge is the lack of comprehensive data. We still do not know exactly how many manuscripts exist across the country. A detailed, nationwide survey is therefore essential.

How are you ensuring long-term preservation of manuscripts and rare texts?
IGNCA has developed some of the best technical expertise in the country for digitising and managing manuscript repositories. We also have a state-of-the-art conservation unit that looks after the complete preservation process of manuscripts — from cleaning and repair to preventive conservation.

What is your current vision for IGNCA?
We are exploring how deep-rooted these Indian knowledge traditions are in the present context, not only in philosophy and religion, but also in fields like mathematics, science, and medicine.

INDIA bloc to boycott JPC on bills to oust tainted CMs, ministers, Cong tells Rijiju

PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi

THE Congress informed Union Minister Kiren Rijiju on Monday that it, along with other opposition parties, will not be part of the joint committee of Parliament on three Bills that seek the removal of top government functionaries under arrest for 30 consecutive days on serious charges, according to party sources.

They said the party conveyed the decision to the Union Parliamentary Affairs Minister, as the opposition parties had unanimously decided to boycott the committee. This newspaper has reported on September 14 that the entire opposition including Congress, has decided not to nominate members to the panel.

At least three parties -- TMC, Shiv Sena (UBT), and AAP -- had earlier declared that they will not be part of the committee. The SP had also hinted at supporting the view that the opposition should be united in not joining the panel.

Last month, Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla said that no political party had written to him about boycotting the joint committee of Parliament to examine the three Bills.

TNIE reported on Sept 14, 2025

On the issue of JPC, no political party has communicated to me in writing on this subject," Birla had told reporters.

On the last day of the Monsoon Session, Home Minister Amit Shah introduced the three Bills in the Lok Sabha - the Government of Union Territories (Amendment) Bill; the Constitution (One Hundred And Thirtieth Amendment) Bill; and the Jammu and Kashmir Reorganization (Amendment) Bill.

The proposed laws call for the removal of the PM, chief ministers, and ministers under arrest for 30 consecutive days on serious charges.

The Bills ignited fierce protest from the entire opposition, which claimed that they were unconstitutional and aimed at targeting its leaders in power in different states.

India, Canada to elevate ties through ministerial-level talks

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

INDIA and Canada on Monday agreed to upgrade bilateral relations through renewed ministerial-level talks, a revived energy dialogue, and a fresh push on trade and technology cooperation. The announcements followed a high-profile meeting in New Delhi between External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar and Canadian Foreign Minister Anita Anand.

The joint statement issued after the talks described the renewed partnership as critical amid "ongoing global economic uncertainty and rising geopolitical tensions", adding that closer cooperation between the two democracies would help build more resilient supply chains, strategic stability, and economic opportunities.

This marks a significant shift in tone after a period of diplomatic chill and follows months of careful re-engagement, beginning with the June meeting between PM Narendra Modi and Canadian PM Mark Carney on the sidelines of the G7 Summit. Since then, both countries have appointed new High Commissioners and reactivated bilateral mechanisms.

Anand, who also met with Prime Minister Modi during her visit, emphasised that the two countries were "elevating the relationship" while continuing security and law enforcement dialogue. Modi, in turn, welcomed Anand's visit as a chance to "infuse fresh momentum" into ties and deepen collaboration across trade, energy, technology, agriculture, and people-to-people engagement.

Key outcome of the meet was re-establishing CIMED

A key outcome of the meeting was re-establishing the Canada-India Ministerial Energy Dialogue (CIMED). Both sides committed to deeper cooperation on clean and secure energy "When we see Canada, we see a complementary economy, an open society, diversity, and pluralism—that form the basis of close cooperation," Jaishankar said.

A key outcome of the meeting was the decision to re-establish the Canada-India Ministerial Energy Dialogue (CIMED). Both sides committed to deeper cooperation on clean and secure energy, including investments in oil and gas exploration, green hydrogen, biofuels, and carbon capture technologies.

The dialogue also aims to strengthen power grid stability, share best practices on emission reduction and disaster resilience, and explore joint work on electric mobility and digital transformation in the energy sector. Speaking after the meeting, Jaishankar said recent developments marked "an important step in addressing our security concerns" and underscored the broad convergence between the two nations.

SIT probe plea into 'vote theft' in K'taka nixed

THE Supreme Court on Monday refused to entertain and pass an order on a PIL filed by lawyer Rohit Pandey seeking a Special Investigation Team (SIT) headed by a former judge to inquire into the allegations raised by Leader of Opposition Rahul Gandhi of large-scale electoral roll manipulation.

"We are not inclined to entertain the petition, which is purportedly filed in public interest," said a two-judge bench of the top court, headed by Justices Surya Kant and Joymalya Bagchi.

The apex court, however, said the petitioner (Rohit Pandey) may pursue the matter before the Election Commission of India (ECI), "if so advised," the bench said.

Pandey cited the allegations Gandhi levelled on August 7 regarding the electoral-roll manipulation in Bengaluru Central and other constituencies. His petition sought binding guidelines from the apex court to the Election Commission of India (ECI) on the roll revision process.

"There should be no further revision or finalisation of electoral rolls be undertaken until compliance with the court's directions and completion of an independent audit of the rolls," the plea stated.

He also sought directions to the Election Commission of India to publish electoral rolls in accessible, machine-readable, and OCR-compliant formats, enabling meaningful verification, audit, and public scrutiny.

On August 7, the Congress leader in a press conference, released data alleging vote theft of more than one lakh in the Mahadevapura assembly segment of the Bangalore Central Lok Sabha constituency. He had made similar allegations in recent months about Maharashtra and Haryana, particularly after Congress suffered defeats in the assembly elections held in both states last year.

SC: Have 2017 palliative care norms been met?

SUCHITRA KALYAN MOHANTY
@ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Monday gave the Centre three weeks to update it on the implementation of 2017 palliative care guidelines issued by the Health Ministry.

A bench of Justices Vikram Nath and Sandeep Mehta asked the Union government to provide details from all states and inform the court of the status. The matter will be heard again on November 25.

Senior Advocate Jayna Kothari, for petitioner Dr. Rajshree Nagaraju, said the plea seeks "palliative care for all persons in India, giving effect to their Right to Health and a dignified end to life under Article 21".

She noted many patients in rural areas prefer care at home and cannot travel easily, making community access vital.

Mishra says India a leader in early warning collaboration on calamities

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

PARTICIPATING in the 'G20 Disaster Risk Reduction Ministerial', PK Mishra, the Principal Secretary to PM Narendra Modi, has showcased India's leadership in financing and early warning collaboration in managing calamities.

Mishra, representing India, at two high-level events – "Solidarity and Resilience: Advancing DRR in International Collaboration and Solidarity for Early Warning Systems" and "Bridging Technical Innovation and Political Leadership for Scaling DRR Investment" – outlined India's multi-agency architecture integrating meteorological, hydrological, seismic and oceanographic institutions through a "Common Alert Protocol-compliant Integrated Alert System".

He also reaffirmed India's commitment to translating the Voluntary High-Level Principles into action through innovation, inclusive financing, and international solidarity.

Mishra emphasised that early warning systems were not technological luxuries but strategic investments in resilience, according to an official statement, which said that he outlined how over 109 billion alerts had already been issued.

"He urged the G20 to strengthen interoperable regional platforms, shared data protocols and joint capacity-building initiatives under the global 'Early Warnings for All' framework. India, he said, viewed early warning as a global public good, which should be inclusive, multilingual and anticipatory," the statement read.

During the second event, Mishra detailed India's five-pillar financing strategy aligned with Principles 2 and 4 of the G20 Voluntary High-Level Principles. "He described India's constitutionally anchored model under the finance commission, which ensured multi-year, rules-based DRR allocations, decentralised funding to the states and local bodies and evidence-based prioritisation through a national Disaster Risk Index," it read.

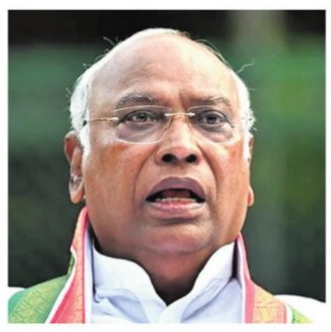
• Congress not ready to climb down from its demand for 60 seats • HAM leader says party's strength undervalued, warns of consequences

INDIA bloc dithers as Tejashwi meets Kharge

PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi



THE uncertainty in the Opposition Mahagathbandhan (Grand Alliance) camp continues even as RJD leader and former Bihar deputy chief minister Tejashwi Yadav met Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge on Monday evening. Though the alliance is yet to seal the deal, sources said that both leaders have discussed seat-sharing arrangements ahead of the Bihar assembly polls. According to Congress insiders, the party is not ready to climb down from its demand of nothing less than 60 seats in the 243 assembly.

Congress general secretary, Organisation, K C Venugopal and the party's in-charge for Bihar, Krishna Allavaru, were present during the meeting at Kharge's residence. Incidentally, Tejashwi and Lalu Yadav were expected to meet senior leader Rahul Gandhi in the evening. However, the meeting did not take place. Sources said that Gandhi told state leaders to stick to the demand of 60 seats and to focus on the party's interests.

Another bone of contention is the Mukesh Sahni-led Vikassheel Insaan Party (VIP), who is currently negotiating with the alliance for 30 seats. According to sources, Sahni is keeping his options open as the NDA camp has deferred its announcement of the list of candidates due to discontent among the allies. Tejashwi Yadav earlier held discussions with Allavaru and Venugopal, where Bihar Congress chief Rajesh Ram, CLP leader in Bihar Vidhan Sabha Shakeel Ahmad Khan were also present.

The 'Mahagathbandhan' alliance in Bihar is likely to finalise seat-sharing in the next few days and may announce its candidates along with a joint manifesto this week. Both sides are also in a tussle over at least five seats, with each claiming it as stronghold constituencies.

On Sunday, Congress leader Jairam Ramesh said the alliance expects all the seats to be finalised and declared in the next two-three days. "We have to adjust some new partners in the 'Mahagathbandhan' and we have to adjust them too in seat-sharing," he said.

Sources said that the Delhi court's framing of charges in a corruption case against Lalu Prasad Yadav, Tejashwi Yadav, and Lalu Yadav's wife Rabri Devi, also came as a setback for the alliance.

The Congress is likely to get fewer seats than last time due to its dismal performance in the 2020 state polls.

Jan Suraaj Party's second list of 65 candidates out

The Jan Suraaj Party (JSP) founded by political strategist-turned-politician Prashant Kishor on Monday released its second list of candidates for 65 seats for the Bihar assembly elections. Kishor's name does not figure in the list as he is expected to contest from RJD MLA Tejashwi Prasad Yadav's Raghopur constituency.

Manjhi, Kushwaha sulk over seat-sharing deal

RAMASHANKAR @ Patna

A day after the National Democratic Alliance (NDA) announced its seat-sharing pact for the Bihar assembly election, two alliance partners — Union minister Jitan Ram Manjhi-led Hindustani Awam Morcha (HAM) and former Union minister Upendra Kushwaha's Rashtriya Lok Morcha (RLM) — expressed dissatisfaction over the number of seats allotted to them.

Under the agreement, the BJP and JDU got 101 seats each. HAM and RLM were allotted six seats each, while Chirag Paswan's Lok Janshakti Party (Ram Vilas) (LJP-RV) received 29 seats. This time, the BJP held talks with smaller allies like LJP(RV), HAM, and RLM, while JDU kept away from the negotiations. Soon after the seat-share announcement on Sunday, Manjhi said his party's strength had been undervalued and warned of possible consequences for the alliance.

Kushwaha posted an "open message" on social media, adding to concerns within the alliance. The Rajya Sabha member wrote, "I understand that this decision (seat share deal) will upset thousands and millions of people, including those who wished to be my party's candidates. Many homes may not have cooked food today. But you all understand my and the party's constraints and limitations. Behind any decision, there are circumstances that are visible from the outside, but there are also some that are not."

He added, "We know that due to ignorance of the internal circumstances, you may feel anger towards me, which is natural. I humbly request you to let your anger subside, and then you will realise for yourself whether the decision is right or wrong. Time will tell. That's all for now. Thank you, yours."

In contrast, the LJP(RV) welcomed its 29 seats after bargaining with BJP leaders in Bihar and Delhi. "We had demanded 40-45 seats but had to be content with 29 seats," said Bihar LJP(RV) president Raju Tiwari. The list of constituencies and candidates of the five NDA allies will be announced on Tuesday. It was to be released on Monday, but was postponed. An emergency meeting of BJP leaders was held at the residence of legislator Nitin Nabin to discuss the resentment among allies.

Rajbhar ready to part ways with NDA in Bihar

The UP chapter of NDA seems to be falling apart in Bihar as Suheldev Bharatiya Samaj Party (SBSP) chief Om Prakash Rajbhar is considering contesting the polls independently, expressing dissatisfaction with the ruling BJP for not allotting a single seat to his party in the neighbouring state. Rajbhar stated that he was ready to contest 153 seats on his own.

Face recognition system at Mantralaya a mess

Maharashtra's Mantralaya introduced a digital face-recognition system to make entry and exit easier for visitors from across the state. However, the system is creating more delays than the traditional method. Visitors are getting stranded at entry points because the data entry process is complex and time-consuming. The face-reading machines often struggle to read a steady flow of faces, causing longer queues. Instead of speeding up access, the digital entry has become a burden on both staff and visitors. Many now spend more time waiting outside Mantralaya than they did under the old manual system, highlighting the system's limitations.

Shinde's Shiv Sena eyes united fight for polls

The Deputy CM Eknath Shinde-led Shiv Sena wants to contest the local body elections as part of the Mahayuti rather than going solo. Shiv Sena minister Gulabrao Patil said, "The interest of Mahayuti is to remain together and contest together." That is a sentiment echoed across party leaders. There is concern that if the BJP uses its machinery to win many seats, allies may be weakened and their bargaining power reduced. Shiv Sena leaders cite the Marathi proverb, "Zhakali mut savva lakhachi" — a folded hand hides many secrets — underlining the need for unity to protect their influence and prevent being sidelined in the alliance.

Ban on pigeon feeding earns Jains' wrath

The Jain community, respected for its business acumen and spiritual guidance, is unhappy with recent government decisions. Actions such as banning the feeding of pigeons, relocating the elephant Madhuri from Kolhapur Jain Math to the Ambani-run Vantara zoo, and tensions over Marathi versus Jain-Gujarati issues have upset both followers and spiritual leaders. In a Mumbai meeting, senior Gurus warned that if the government does not address their concerns, they may launch their own political platform to raise these issues. They also cautioned Deputy CM Eknath Shinde to rein in officials, or the community may take a "strong stand".

No Cong in race, direct contest between NC & BJP in J&K Rajya Sabha polls

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

WITH the Congress opting out of the Rajya Sabha elections in Jammu and Kashmir, the race for the four vacant Rajya Sabha seats in the Union Territory is now a direct battle between the ruling National Conference (NC) and the opposition BJP.

If the NC secures the support of all non-BJP MLAs, they have the potential to win all the four seats. Otherwise, the BJP could secure victory for its president in the fourth seat. On Monday, the NC made a last minute addition to its list of three candidates announced a few days ago. The party decided to field its spokesman and youth leader Imran Nabi Dar for the "not so secure" fourth RS seat, which had been rejected by their ally, the Congress. As a result, four NC candidates now will be Choudhary Mohammad Ramzan, Sajad Kichloo, Shammi Oberoi and Imran Nabi Dar.

The BJP too has fielded three candidates—J&K BJP president Sat Pal Sharma, Ali Mohammad Mir and Rakesh Mahajan. All the candidates from NC and BJP filed their nomination papers on Monday, the last date for filing. Currently, the NC alliance has the backing of 53 members in the present 88-member Assembly, while the BJP has 28. As a result, the ruling party is poised to win three seats. On the fourth seat in which NC's Imran has been pitched against the BJP president, who holds a slight numerical edge. If all non-BJP opposition MLAs vote for NC, then Imran can also sail through but if any of the two members abstain, BJP's victory is certain.

CM Omar Abdullah said the BJP cannot win even a single Rajya Sabha seat from J&K without indulging in horse trading.

The BJP too has fielded three candidates—J&K BJP president Sat Pal Sharma, Ali Mohammad Mir and Rakesh Mahajan. CM Omar said the BJP cannot win a single RS seat from J&K without indulging in horse trading: "They need 30 votes to win the 4th seat but have only 28. Not a single MLA apart from those 28 has supported them in the past year."

Jawed Habib, son booked for fraud in Bitcoin scam

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

CELEBRITY hairstylist Jawed Habib has been implicated in a scam involving Bitcoin investment scheme allegedly defrauding investors and promising them higher returns resulting in the registration of 32 FIRs against him and his son Anos Habib in UP's Sambhal district.

Habib and his family are also facing a lookout notice to prevent them from leaving the country. However, the hairstylist's lawyer, Pawan Kumar, met the local police on Sunday and submitted papers citing that his client is unwell. However, the police told Kumar that Habib would be required to give his statement in person.

Habib, his son, and an associate have been accused of taking ₹5-7 lakh from each from multiple investors promising them returns of up to ten times by investing the money in Bitcoin. The scheme was run under the\ banner of a company called the Follicle Global Company. However, even after years, the investors did not get the returns.

Sambhal SP KK Vishnoi said even after two years of getting investments and having promised high returns, the Habibs failed to keep their word.

India's criminal justice system to be most modern, says Shah

RAJESH ASNANI @ Jaipur

UNION Home Minister Amit Shah on Monday described the implementation of the three new criminal laws—the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS) and Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam (BSA)—as a historic reform and the biggest overhaul of India's criminal justice system in the 21st century.

Addressing a state-level exhibition at the Jaipur Exhibition and Convention Centre (JECC) showcasing the shift in India's criminal justice system from a punitive approach to one focused on justice and transparency, Shah described the three new laws as the foundation of a modern, transparent and efficient justice delivery system. The Home Minister said the reforms introduced under PM Narendra Modi's leadership will transform India's judicial framework.

He noted that the laws—which came into effect on July 1 last year, replacing the colonial-era Indian Penal Code, Code of Criminal Procedure and Indian Evidence Act—will take another two years to be fully implemented. "Once they are fully implemented, India's criminal justice system will be the most modern in the world," he asserted, adding, "After 2027, an FIR filed anywhere in the country will reach the Supreme Court within three years to secure justice." The minister also exuded confidence that the reforms would bring a major shift in the ease of justice.

Citing the impact of the new legal system in Rajasthan, Shah pointed out, "Earlier, the conviction rate in the state was 42%. It rose to 60% a year later. Once fully implemented, it may go up to 90%."

Shah stressed that the reforms will also reduce the hassle involved in court-related matters by removing the need for physical appearances. "The accused will be presented via video conferencing from jail. Police officers, bank employees, doctors and forensic experts will also be able to appear virtually. This will save both time and money," he explained. Policemen delivered a series of presentations on the occasion on how the new laws have reduced investigation time and enhanced productivity.

The victim-centric approach of the new laws was also demonstrated. Shah further lauded CM Bhajan Lal Sharma for improving transparency and governance in the state. The exhibition will conclude on October 18. However, Shah has suggested that the state government extend it.

Audit Exposes Gaps: 35% updated data, 38% outdated, 19% missing info, 8% dead websites despite SC directives
Govt Silent, Citizens Loud: No state awareness campaign in a decade; MAGP blog posts 28,000+ RTI stories
MAGP Reform Blueprint: Enforcing GAD & court directives, appointing nodal RTI officers at all levels & redesigning appeal format

TWENTY years after the Right to Information (RTI) Act came into force, Gujarat's transparency story shows governance gaps. Citizens have so far filed over 21 lakh RTI applications, but weak proactive disclosures, a poor penalty record, and failure to protect whistleblowers have turned a reformative exercise into an accountability crisis, according to the latest report by NGO Mahiti Adhikar Gujarat Pehal (MAGP).

The RTI Act, implemented on October 12, 2005, was projected as a tool to break administrative opacity. In Gujarat, the size of applications over two decades shows a tug of war between citizen engagement and official resistance to transparency. Education, Home, and Revenue departments alone handled 58% of these requests, showing how public power remains concentrated in a few key sectors. Officials admit that better digital disclosures could have reduced this pressure.

The NGO says appeals kept piling up at the Gujarat State Information Commission (GSIC). Since May 2005, GSIC has processed over 1.37 lakh appeals and complaints, disposing of 1,26,540, while 1,248 remain pending. Yet, in 20 years, not a single journalist or civil society member has been appointed as Commissioner, keeping decisions entirely within bureaucracy. The penalty system, meant to enforce compliance, is weak. Only 1,284 Public Information Officers were fined over two decades—less than 1% of cases—and only 74 faced disciplinary action. Despite 17 circulars from 2006 to modernise records and train officers, the government has made little progress.

Digital disclosures are bleak. A 2025 audit of 26 departments under Section 4(1)(b) found 35% updated their data, 38% displayed outdated information, 19% lacked manuals and budget records, and 8% had dead websites. The Education and Health departments were updated periodically, whereas the Urban Development and Legal departments relied on decade-old files, ignoring Supreme Court directives.

Yogi okays restructuring of Invest UP, to set up expert cells and open offices

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

IN the first meeting of the Invest UP Governing Body, chaired by CM Yogi Adityanath on Monday, several key decisions were taken aimed at strengthening the state's industrial investment ecosystem.

Adityanath approved the proposal for a comprehensive restructuring of Invest UP to make it more efficient, expert-driven, and investor-centric.

Under the new structure, specialist cells will be established for sectors such as textiles, automobiles and electric mobility, chemicals, electronics, and services. In addition, satellite investment promotion offices will be set up in Mumbai, Bengaluru, Hyderabad, Chennai, and New Delhi enablig direct engagement with domestic and global investors and attract more investments to the state.

The CM emphasised the need to ensure transparency, efficiency, and a result-oriented approach in the functioning of these offices. He said, "The new structure will empower Invest UP to function as a single, comprehensive investment facilitation agency not only attracting investments but also ensuring effective monitoring and timely implementation of projects."

In the meeting, the officers concerned claimed that Uttar Pradesh had made remarkable strides in industrial development over the past few years. Nearly 4,000 new factories have been established in 2024–25, bringing the total number to around 27,000.

During the review of investment promotion and facilitation systems, it was reported that account managers have been assigned to 814 Fortune 1000 companies. So far, 50 new MoUs have been signed, while discussions are ongoing with more than 280 companies. The Chief Minister instructed officials to strengthen engagement with investors and ensure the timely provision of land, incentives, and skilled human resources to industrial units.

Reviewing the ease of doing business, the CM said that industrial investment in UP had evolved from being merely a policy commitment to a demonstrable model of on-ground delivery.

Don, leaders sign declaration to cement Gaza peace

Hamas disarmament and other thorny issues remain unresolved

SHARM EL SHEIKH

US President Donald Trump hailed a "tremendous day for the Middle East" as he and regional leaders signed a declaration Monday meant to cement a ceasefire in Gaza, hours after Israel and Hamas exchanged hostages and prisoners.

Trump made a lightning visit to Israel, where he lauded Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in an address to parliament, before flying to Egypt for a Gaza summit where he and the leaders of Egypt, Qatar and Turkey signed the declaration as guarantors to the Gaza deal. "This is a tremendous day for the world, it's a tremendous day for the Middle East," Trump said as more than two dozen world leaders sat down to talk in the resort of Sharm el-Sheikh. "The document is going to spell out rules and regulations and lots of other things," Trump said before signing, repeating twice that "it's going to hold up." As part of Trump's plan to end the Gaza war, Hamas on Monday freed the last 20 surviving hostages it held after two years of captivity in Gaza.

In exchange, Israel released 1,968 mostly Palestinian prisoners held in its jails, its prison service said. However, thornier issues such as whether Hamas will disarm and who will govern Gaza — and the question of Palestinian statehood — remain unresolved, highlighting the fragility of an agreement that for now only pauses the deadliest conflict in the history of Israel and the Palestinians.

"From October 7 until this week, Israel has been a nation at war, enduring burdens that only a proud and faithful people could withstand," Trump told lawmakers during an address to Israel's parliament, where he received a lengthy standing ovation upon his arrival."For so many families across this land, it has been years since you've known a single day of true peace," he continued. AFP

'Once-in-a-lifetime chance to put old feuds behind us'

SHARM EL SHEIKH

DONALD Trump called for a new era of harmony in the Middle East on Monday during a global summit on Gaza's future, trying to advance broader peace in the region after visiting Israel to celebrate a US-brokered ceasefire with Hamas.

"We have a once-in-a-lifetime chance to put the old feuds and bitter hatreds behind us," Trump said, and he urged leaders "to declare that our future will not be ruled by the fights of generations past." The whirlwind trip, which included the summit in Egypt and a speech at the Knesset in Jerusalem earlier in the day, comes at a fragile moment of hope for ending two years of war between Israel and Hamas.

"Everybody said it's not possible to do. And it's going to happen. And it is happening before your very eyes," Trump said alongside Egyptian President Abdel Fattah el-Sissi. Nearly three dozen countries, including some from Europe and the Middle East, were represented at the summit.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu was invited but declined, with his office saying it was too close to a Jewish holiday.

Despite unanswered questions about next steps in the Palestinian enclave, which has been devastated during the conflict, Trump is determined to seize an opportunity to chase an elusive regional harmony. AP

Five killed in clashes during pro-Palestinian march in Pak

LAHORE

A clash between Pakistan authorities and thousands of protesters marching in support of Palestinians killed at least five people including a police officer and injured dozens of other officers on Monday, police and witnesses said.

Punjab Police Chief Usman Anwar said demonstrators opened fire on authorities, killing the officer and wounding others. Police said three protesters and one passerby also died in the clashes before the demonstrators were dispersed. The march was organized by political party Tehreek-e-Labbaik Pakistan, or TLP, which said in a statement that hundreds of rally participants were injured and the casualty figure was high among its supporters. Videos released by TLP on Monday showed several vehicles burning, including a truck carrying party officials who were leading what they have called the "long march," which started in eastern Pakistan on Friday with demonstrators planning to march from Lahore toward the capital, Islamabad.

The march has resulted in violence between authorities and demonstrators. Police arrested more than 100 people during a protest Saturday.

The latest clashes Monday began when protesters tried to remove shipping containers placed by police to block roads. Supporters clashed with police in Lahore and later camped in the nearby town of Muridke before resuming the march. AP

Pakistan-Afghan border closure extends into 2nd day after clashes

PESHAWAR

THE closure of border crossings for bilateral trade between Afghanistan and Pakistan extended into a second day after deadly weekend clashes between the countries spiked tensions and hundreds of people were stranded on Monday, officials said.

The fighting began on Saturday night, when Afghan forces struck multiple Pakistani military posts. Afghanistan officials claimed to have killed 58 Pakistani soldiers in response to what they said were repeated violations of Afghan territory and airspace.

Pakistan's military gave lower figures, saying it lost 23 soldiers and killed more than 200 'Taliban and affiliated terrorists' during retaliatory fire along the border. Foreign governments, including Saudi Arabia, urged restraint. A ceasefire appeared to be holding.

Authorities said no new exchange of fire had been reported since Sunday along the 2,611-kilometer long border known as the Durand Line, which Afghanistan has never recognised.

It was not clear when the border might reopen. Though the southwestern Chaman border crossing was closed for trade, authorities briefly allowed about 1,500 Afghan nationals stranded there since Sunday to return home on foot, government officer Imtiaz Ali said. A key northwestern crossing in Torkham, Pakistan, remained closed Monday to all travel and trade. The closure was confirmed by Mujib Ullah, a representative for local traders. PTI

China calls on Pakistan, Afghan to end conflict

BEIJING: China on Monday urged Pakistan and Afghanistan to exercise restraint and resolve their mutual concerns through dialogue and consultations, after dozens of soldiers from both sides were killed in intense clashes along the border between the two neighbours. Pakistan and Afghanistan are both friendly neighbours of China. The two countries are and will always be neighbours of each other, Chinese Foreign Minister Lin Jian told media.

Trump warns Russia of Tomahawk strikes if war continues

ABOARD AIR FORCE ONE

US PRESIDENT Donald Trump on Sunday warned Russia that he may offer Ukraine long-range Tomahawk missiles if Moscow doesn't settle its war there soon — suggesting that he could be ready to increase the pressure on Vladimir Putin's government using a key weapons system.

"I might say, 'Look: if this war is not going to get settled, I'm going to send them Tomahawks," Trump told reporters aboard Air Force One as he flew to Israel. "The Tomahawk is an incredible weapon, very offensive weapon. And honestly, Russia does not need that." Trump also said, "I might tell them that if the war is not settled -- that we may very well." He added, "We may not, but we may do it. I think it's appropriate to bring up."

His comments came after Trump spoke with Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy, and Trump said he mentioned possibly sending Tomahawks during that conversation. "Do they want to have Tomahawks going in that direction? I don't think so," Trump said of Russia. "I think I might speak to Russia about that." He added that "Tomahawks are a new step of aggression." His suggestions followed Russia having attacked Ukraine's power grid overnight, part of an ongoing campaign to cripple Ukrainian energy infrastructure before winter. Moscow also expressed "extreme concern" over the U.S. potentially providing Tomahawk cruise missiles to Ukraine. Putin himself has previously suggested that the United States supplying long-range missiles to Ukraine will seriously damage relations between Moscow and Washington. For his part, Zelenskyy described his latest call with Trump as "very productive," and said the pair had discussed strengthening Ukraine's "air defense, resilience, and long-range capabilities," along with "details related to the energy sector." In an interview with Fox News Channel's "The Sunday Briefing" after his call with Trump, Zelenskyy was asked whether Trump had approved the Tomahawks and said, "we work on it."

"I'm waiting for president to yes," Zelenskyy said. "Of course we count on such decisions, but we will see. We will see." The Ukrainian president said on Friday that he was in talks with US officials about the possible provision of various long-range precision strike weapons, including Tomahawks and more ATACMS tactical ballistic missiles.Kremlin spokesperson Dmitry Peskov said in remarks published Sunday that "the topic of Tomahawks is of extreme concern." Trump, who has been frustrated by Russia in his efforts to end the war, said last week that he has "sort of made a decision" on whether to send Tomahawks to Ukraine, without elaborating. AP

Nobel prize in economics awarded for study of innovation and growth

INNOVATION AT THE HEART OF GROWTH

Nobel laureates show why progress depends on constant innovation

ECONOMIC IMPACT

Nobel committee said their work explains why scientific understanding is crucial for self-sustaining innovation and economic growth

CONTRASTING VIEWS

Mokyr, an economic historian, studies long-term trends using historical sources, while Aghion and Howitt use mathematical models to explain creative destruction

Mokyr learned of his Nobel win while making coffee: "I had no clue this was going to happen"

CORE IDEA

The Nobel laureates' work focuses on how new technologies replace older ones, a process called creative destruction, which in turn drives economic progress

"Technology is knowledge" — Enlightenment science drove the Industrial Revolution

STOCKHOLM

THREE researchers who probed the process of business innovation won the Nobel memorial prize in economics Monday for explaining how new products and inventions promote economic growth and human welfare, even as they leave older companies in the dust.

Their work was credited with helping economists better understand how ideas and technology succeed by disrupting established ways — a process as old as steam locomotives replacing horse-drawn wagons and as contemporary as e-commerce shuttering shopping malls. Dutch-born Joel Mokyr, 79, is at Northwestern University; Philippe Aghion, 69, works at the College de France and the London School of Economics; and Canadian-born Peter Howitt, 79, is at Brown University.

The winners were credited with better explaining and quantifying "creative destruction," a key concept in economics that refers to the process in which beneficial new innovations replace and thus destroy older technologies and businesses. The concept is usually associated with economist Joseph Schumpeter, who outlined it in his 1942 book "Capitalism, Socialism and Democracy." Schumpeter called the concept "the essential fact about capitalism."

The Nobel committee said Mokyr "demonstrated that if innovations are to succeed one another in a self-generating process, we not only need to know that something works, but we also need to have scientific explanations for why." AP

CE RADIATION INVESTIGATION PICKS PACE

Indonesia has raised the status of the Cesium-137 (Cs-137) radiation exposure case in the Cikande Modern Industrial Estate, Banten, to a full investigation, Environment Minister Hanif Faisol Nurofiq said on Monday. Nurofiq said legal action is part of the government's effort to resolve the case, which poses serious risks to public safety.
He said investigators are pursuing two leads: potential contamination from imported iron and steel scrap containing radioactive materials, and possible leakage or waste from the commercial use of Cs-137.

Death toll rises to 64 after torrential rains in Mexico

POZA RICA

THE death toll from last week's torrential rains in Mexico jumped to 64 on Monday, as searches expanded to communities previously cut off by landslides. Another 65 people were missing following the heavy rainfall in central and southeastern Mexico that caused rivers to top their banks, Civil Defense Coordinator Laura Velázquez Alzúa said during President Claudia Sheinbaum's daily press briefing.

"There are sufficient resources, this won't be skimped on ... because we're still in the emergency period," Sheinbaum said. Thousands of military personnel have been deployed across the region. In northern Veracruz, 80 communities remained inaccessible by road. Sheinbaum acknowledged it could still be days before access is established to some places. "A lot of flights are required to take sufficient food and water" to those places, she said. Early official estimates note 100,000 affected homes, and in some cases, houses near rivers "practically disappeared," Sheinbaum said. The scale of the destruction across five states was coming into clearer focus a day after Sheinbaum visited affected communities in Puebla and Veracruz, promising a rapidly scaled-up government response. AP

Foxconn to invest ₹15k cr in TN, create 14k engg jobs

State govt promises full support through facilitation mechanisms

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Chennai

IN a boost to Tamil Nadu's electronics and advanced manufacturing, Foxconn on Monday announced ₹15,000 crore investment. The company said this will generate 14,000 engineering jobs in the state.

The announcement followed a meeting between Chief Minister M K Stalin and Robert Wu, Foxconn's India representative and senior global executive, in Chennai. Industries minister T R B Rajaa and senior officials were also present. Foxconn will set up country's first "Foxconn Desk" at Guidance Tamil Nadu. The dedicated desk will function as a single-window mechanism to fast-track clearances, facilitate investments and coordinate on large projects, the government said in a statement.

Welcoming the investment, Stalin said the state will provide full support through its facilitation mechanisms and talent development programmes. On social media, he said: "This is the Dravidian Model in action. Thank you Hon Hai Foxconn for choosing Tamil Nadu and shaping future with us. This marks another milestone in our journey to make Tamil Nadu manufacturing and innovation hub of South Asia." Wu said Foxconn was deepening its partnership with TN, citing strong policy support, infrastructure readiness and abundant skilled talent pool. The state, he added, was central to Foxconn's next phase of growth in India — including advanced manufacturing, battery technologies and AI-led production systems.

The move signals a strategic shift for Foxconn in TN — from being a manufacturing base to an integrated hub for value-added production, R&D and technology-driven operations. It reinforces the state's ambition to position itself as a global centre for electronics and engineering innovation.

Rajaa said Foxconn's expansion would bring value-added manufacturing, R&D integration and AI-enabled advanced tech operations to the state. "First-ever Foxconn Desk in India will ensure seamless facilitation and mission-mode execution," he said. In October 2024, the state cabinet cleared a ₹13,180 crore proposal from Yuzhan Technology, part of the Foxconn Group, to manufacture mobile phones in Kancheepuram. The company acquired 500,000 sq ft at ESR Oragadam Industrial and Logistics Park for the project.

Govt eases rules for EPF withdrawals

ENS BUSINESS BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Central Board of Trustees (CBT) of the Employees' Provident Fund Organisation (EPFO) has relaxed rules for partial withdrawals from EPF accounts, allowing members to withdraw up to 100% of their eligible balances including both employee and employer share.

Labour minister Mansukh Mandaviya approved the decision of consolidating 13 existing withdrawal provisions into three broad categories — essential needs (education, illness, marriage), housing needs, and special circumstances (such as natural calamities or unemployment). Under these revisions, withdrawals for education can be made up to 10 times, and for marriage up to five times, replacing the earlier cap of three.

"Members will be able to withdraw up to 100% of the eligible balance in the Provident Fund including employee and employer share," the ministry stated in the statement. A uniform 12-month minimum service requirement has been prescribed for all partial withdrawals, eliminating varied thresholds under different categories.

Previously, EPFO members seeking partial withdrawals under the 'Special Circumstances' category had to specify reasons such as a natural calamity, factory closure, prolonged unemployment, or an epidemic. This procedural requirement often resulted in claim rejections and related grievances. Under the revised rules, members can now make such withdrawals without having to cite any specific reason, simplifying the process and reducing the scope for disputes.

To safeguard retirement savings, the EPFO has also mandated that at least 25% of one's contributions needs to be there as a minimum balance. This ensures that members continue to benefit from EPFO's interest rates (currently 8.25 % per annum) with compounding.

Other decisions at the meeting included extending the final settlement window. Members can now make premature final EPF withdrawals after 12 months (against two months earlier), and pension withdrawals after 36 months (against 2 months). A major source of litigation for the EPFO has been the steep penal damages on delayed provident fund remittances, which totalled ₹2,406 crore across over 6,000 cases as of May 2025.

12 months of service must for withdrawals

Under the revisions, withdrawals for education can be made up to 10 times, and for marriage up to five times, replacing earlier cap of three. A uniform 12-month minimum service requirement has been prescribed for all partial withdrawals, eliminating varied thresholds under different categories

Gold, silver scale new peaks ahead of Dhanteras amid global uncertainties

BENN KOCHUVEEDAN @ Mumbai

WITH international prices of gold and silver scaling new peaks—crossing the $4,100 mark for an ounce of gold and $50.7 for the same quantity of the white metal — domestic prices hit new records, aided by the festive season demand arising from the upcoming auspicious day of Dhanteras.

While gold has delivered more than 55% globally and 62% in the domestic markets so far this year; the white metal delivered more at close to 70% in the domestic market during this time. As per Sanjay Agrawal, senior director at Care Ratings, gold has rallied $1,000 per ounce in 207 days, while the metal had taken close to 15 years to move from $1,000 to $2,000. The next leap was far quicker, another $1,000 rise pushed the price to $3,000 within just 14 months ending mid-March 2025. Since March, it has jumped another $1,000.

These metals have hit new life-time highs last week after dollar index continued to fall and US government shutdown entered the second week. But the week saw some profit booking towards the close of the week. On Friday, US president Trump opened a new trade war with China, announcing an additional 100% tax on Chinese goods shipped to the US after Beijing announced sweeping control on rare earths.

Resuming its record bull-run after a few sessions of profit-booking last week, when the yellow metal had for the first time crossed $4000 mark to scale past $4,097 an ounce (28.34 grams), gold futures contracts for December delivery jumped over 2% on the Multi Commodity Exchange on Monday to hit an all-time high of ₹1,23,977/10 grams—a new all-time high in the domestic market.

The contracts with February and April expiries, meanwhile, jumped over 2% each to their respective highs and so did the June futures hitting a fresh lifetime high, jumping around 3% to ₹1,28,741. Silver futures, meanwhile soared up to 4%.

The prices of the precious metals remain under active watch amid expectations of rising demand ahead of the Dhanteras, by the weekend, when most of North India snap up this metals. The ongoing rally has reignited public fascination with the yellow metal, leaving investors, jewellers, and economists alike asking what's fuelling this surge, and how long can it endure? Many foreign analysts see the metal crossing the $6,000 per ounce mark sometime next year.

ONGC plans to optimise cost, raise efficiency

RAKESH KUMAR @ New Delhi

STATE-owned Oil and Natural Gas Corporation (ONGC) is preparing for a future where crude oil prices may settle around $60 per barrel to remain profitable, said Director (Production) Pankaj Kumar.

As per the company, oil prices are expected to remain volatile, but a stable average range of $60–$70 per barrel is anticipated in the near to medium term. Kumar highlighted projects across ONGC's eastern and western offshore assets. As part of its growth roadmap, the energy major has committed $400 million in capital expenditure for the ONGC-BP redevelopment project (Phase 1).

ONGC aims to save a total of Rs 9,300 crore by the financial year 2027 backed by a number of cost optimization measures planned by the company. The cost reduction would account for about 15% of the planned operational and capital expenditure cost of Rs 62,000 crore during the period, ONGC is also looking to include more Technical Service Providers (TSPs) to boost production from its ageing oil and gas fields—following the successful model used for the Mumbai High field.

Banks Q2 earnings preview: Profit likely to fall 7-8% on lower NIM, treasury gains

BENN KOCHUVEEDAN @ Mumbai

WITH the second quarter earnings season beginning this week, brokerage expect lenders will report poor set of numbers. They see net incomes falling by 7-8% on the back of crimped net interest margins and a poor show by treasury desks.

However, state-run banks are likely to do better on the margins front given their larger franchises which offer them easier access to the low-cost Casa deposits. Private sector lenders like HDFC Bank, ICICI Bank, Axis Bank, and Yes Bank, among others, will announce their Q2FY26 earnings this week, most of them on Saturday, while their public sector counters will do so from the next week or in November. Banks have been facing margin pressure since the beginning of this fiscal as the RBI has cut benchmark lending rate by 100 bps to 5.5% between February and June, which has forced them to pass on benefits to existing customers as most of the loans are on repo-linked floating rates, while deposits are priced much higher as banks were facing a flight of cheap money out of their counter for some years now. While repo-linked loans have to be repriced within a month under external benchmark linked loan pricing, existing fixed deposits can't be repriced, therefore, banks have to pay agreed interest through life of deposits, impacting margins. Emkay Global, Motilal Oswal, Axis Securities and Yes Securities expect private lenders like HDFC Bank, ICICI Bank, and RBL Bank to be outliers, along with public sector lender Indian Bank, while Axis Bank, Federal Bank, Bandhan Bank, Canara Bank and Union Bank reporting softer quarter on weak margins and elevated credit costs.

Tata Capital IPO makes muted debut amid broader equity mkt weakness

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

TATA CAPITAL shares made a muted stock market debut on the stock exchanges on Monday. Its initial public offer (IPO), which concluded last week, was subscribed 1.95 times. Shares of the non-banking financial company were listed at ₹330 per share on the NSE, a premium of 1.23% over its IPO price.

On the BSE, the shares were listed at ₹330 per share, a premium of 1.23% and the company commanded a market capitalization of ₹1,39,783 crore. Tata Capital settled 1.56% higher from its IPO price on the debut day at ₹331.10 per share on the NSE.

The not-so-encouraging listing was anticipated given the IPO saw a tepid response from investors amid ongoing boardroom turmoil at the Tata Group and a sharp decline in Tata Group stocks so far this year. Further, a weakness in the broader equity market on Monday due to escalating tariff tension between India and China impacted sentiments.

The Sensex settled 173.77 points or 0.21% lower at 82,327.05, and the Nifty was down 58 points or 0.23% to close at 25,227.35. The ₹15,512-crore IPO of Tata Capital, the biggest of 2025 so far, received bids for 65,11,26,136 shares as against 33,34,36,996 shares on offer, translating into a 1.95 times subscription, according to BSE data. Brokerage firm JM Financial initiated coverage on Tata Capital (TCL) with an 'ADD' rating and a target price of ₹360, valuing it at 2.9x FY27E P/B. Emkay Global Financial Services also initiated coverage on the Tata Capital with an 'Add' rating on the scrip.

Court sanctions restructuring plan of WazirX

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Chennai

MORE than a year after crypto exchange WazirX suffered a cyber attack leading to the theft of ₹2,000 crore worth of funds, its parent company Zettai Pte on Monday said the High Court of Singapore has officially sanctioned creditor-approved restructuring scheme proposed by Zettai with modification.

This comes after 95.7% of voting creditors — representing 94.6% in value — re-voted in favour of the Scheme in August 2025. This approval marks the culmination of months of collaborative efforts between Zettai and the WazirX user community, paving the way for the reopening of the platform. A cyberattack on WazirX in July last year led to the theft of about ₹2,000 crore worth of funds. Later in September, the exchange filed a moratorium application in Singapore Court.

"The sanction represents a key milestone in WazirX's journey since it marks one of the fastest restructurings in the global crypto industry, despite suffering one of the biggest cyber attacks in the history of this space. We remain focused on our mission towards acting in best interests of our creditors. As soon as the scheme is effective based on the verdict, we will start platform operations within 10 business days. To everyone who stood by us with patience and belief — thank you," said Nischal Shetty, Founder of WazirX.

As the next step, Zettai Pte will file the order with the Accounting and Corporate Regulatory Authority (ACRA). Within 10 business days of the Scheme becoming effective, the WazirX platform will restart operations, and token distributions to Scheme Creditors will take place.

Sebi chief asks MF trustees to build guardrails for industry, investors

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Mumbai

TUHIN KANTA PANDEY, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Board (Sebi), on Monday urged mutual fund trustees to implement early warning systems that can detect anomalies and trigger timely interventions. He also called for their active engagement in establishing guardrails to safeguard the industry and investors.

Addressing the mutual fund trustees, Pandey described trustees as the first-line of defence in ensuring the integrity of the systems and the processes related to valuation practices and risk management. "When needed, trustees are empowered to act—to question, to escalate, and, if necessary, to intervene. This authority carries with it the moral duty to act decisively and fearlessly, to protect the interests of investors," said Pandey.

He urged them to independently test internal controls of asset management companies (AMCs), seek clarifications on compliance reports, and challenge assumptions where necessary. Emphasising that trustees must keep pace with evolving areas such as derivatives, alternative assets, ESG (environmental, social, and governance) investing, and risk analytics, Pandey sad said specialised training in these areas is essential for effective oversight.

"Oversight must have depth—not just documentation," he said, underscoring that the appearance of conflicts must be avoided or transparently disclosed to maintain credibility. The Sebi chairman also outlined some measures taken recently to clearly delineate the roles of trustees and AMC boards. These include mandating independent evaluation and due diligence by trustees, while AMC boards are required to establish unit-holders' protection committees.

AMCs must implement structured mechanisms to prevent market abuse, such as front-running, insider trading, and misuse of sensitive information, the chairman said, adding trustees are expected to verify these mechanisms to ensure they function both in spirit and substance,. Highlighting the phenomenal growth of the mutual fund industry—assets under management reached ₹75.6 trillion as of September, with 56 million unique investors—Pandey underscored trustees' role as custodians of investor trust.

When needed, trustees are empowered to act—to question, to escalate, and, if necessary, to intervene. This authority carries with it moral duty to act decisively and fearlessly

Retail inflation cools to 1.54% in September

PUSHPITA DEY @ New Delhi

INDIA's retail inflation fell sharply to an eight-year low of 1.54% in September, falling below the lower tolerance limit of the RBI's 2-6% target band. The fall is primarily driven by lower food prices.

Food inflation fell to -2.28%, marking the fourth consecutive month of negative move. Vegetable prices plunged dramatically—down 21.38% year-on-year—while for the pulses, there was a fall of 15.32%. "Vegetables, edible oils, fruits and pulses led the decline," said Dharmakirti Joshi, chief economist, Crisil.

The headline inflation for rural areas stood at 1.07%, while urban inflation moderated to 2.04%.Core inflation (excluding food and fuel) rose, reaching 4.5%, partly fuelled by surging gold prices.

"Inflation is expected to remain benign on the back of low crude prices and the impact of GST rationalisation on retail prices," added Joshi.

A speech, keeping the stumps in play & Dial K for Kuldeep: How India came back on a slow pitch

SLOW & STEADY FIGHT BACK

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@ New Delhi

KL RAHUL was leading the group with what seemed like a big speech. A lot of the Indian players, some still holding drinks in their hands, were nodding along. Others were staring into the distance, looking at the vast expanse. A couple of the substitutes were trudging back to the dugout after Shubman Gill took over responsibility of geeing up the fielders.

At the end of the first official break in place on the fourth morning of the second Test, it was fair to say that the hosts were slowly but surely getting more frustrated. One of the overnight batters, John Campbell, had reached a fine 100 while the other, Shai Hope, was looking very untroubled. Jasprit Bumrah had got the ball to curve back with some reverse but apart from a few balls, the pitch was holding firm. The ball had also gone out of shape and one of the newer ones from the briefcase had done nothing.

This wasn't supposed to be like this. After enforcing the follow on, the hosts were potentially looking at an innings win. 24 hours later, they were in the middle of an extraordinary general meeting with the leadership group.

That group — after consultation with the bowlers — had tried a few things. A 3-6 leg-side field for spin, a few short balls but Campbell and Hope had thwarted them. India were still very much in control of the situation but the match was meandering, like watching a movie in slow motion.

That's when the carefully constructed jenga had begun to collapse, a day of hard work undone inside 30 overs. It all started because of an error of misjudgement on the part of Campbell. He had reverse swept with a lot of control but picked the wrong ball to attempt it again, this time off Ravindra Jadeja. The fingerspinner had pitched this in a middle and leg line and Campbell missed it completely, the ball sneaking under the bat and crashing into the pads. It was so dead the southpaw didn't even bother to turn around and appeal. Roston Chase and Hope took the lead but the hosts had a fresh weapon — the new ball. This was a new ball strip and Gill & Co had a limited window to make it count. The shiny red one acted as a sledgehammer as it crashed through Windies' dreams. Just like that, they lost 6/40 across 17 overs. Coming into the game, the hosts had a lot of practice bowling on new ball surfaces in England. As soon as it was available, Gill wasted no time in bringing back his two pacers and the plan was simple. Bowl tight lines, keep the stumps in play and cut out the singles that were on offer for Hope and Campbell.

37
By dismissing Shai Hope, Siraj pocketed his 37th wicket of the year, the most in 2025.

Mohammed Siraj went back to his wobble seam and Hope, even before his century, had started feeling for balls outside the off stump. This one took the inside edge and cannoned onto the stumps.

With Bumrah not as effective, Gill brought back Kuldeep Yadav. It paid immediate dividends as Tevin Imlach went right back and was caught in front. Six balls later, he got one to stop on Chase a touch, whose attempted flick was caught at mid-wicket. Minutes later, the wristspinner was again celebrating, he tossed one up and enticed Khary Pierre into a swipe and the skier was caught by Nitish Reddy. From 293/4 to 298/7, this is what a wristspinner can do as they can eliminate the surfaces.

Reflection and reset need of hour for Kaur and Co

GOMESH S @ Chennai

AFTER what seemed like yet another close defeat in the Women's Cricket World Cup — this time against Australia — India head coach Amol Muzumdar was sitting at the dais of the press conference room at the ACA-VDCA Stadium on Sunday. The first question was about the collapse in the last ten overs, where India lost their last five wickets for 21 runs in 25 balls.

Muzumdar, while acknowledging that India could have added another 20-30 runs, said it was a good batting day and 330 was a challenging total. Then came the question of sticking to five bowlers. The Mumbaikar replied: "Obviously, after this game, we will have a look at it. I am sure the team management will have a proper discussion about this and then we will take the right call as we approach the next game."

A few more queries on the loss and the collapse later, he was asked about the dot ball percentage. Muzumdar said that the team had an "elongated discussion" after the loss against South Africa. "One of the things that was discussed was the dot ball percentage," he said. "Yes, the dot ball percentage has come down, but we'll have a closer look at it," he said when asked about the stagnation that seems to happen, especially when Pratika Rawal and Harleen Deol are batting together. Before he signed off, Muzumdar went on to say that they have a settled batting line-up and would not like to tinker with it even though they can be flexible when required.

Harmapreet Kaur | G SATYANARAYANA

Watching the Indian team operates from the outside and listening to the head coach after their second loss, it seemed more reactionary than being proactive about their plans on what to expect against stronger opponents in the tournament. It took a loss against South Africa to have an "elongated discussion" about a pre-existing problem, of which there were signs in the lead-up to the tournament. And now, once again, a loss against Australia seems to have led to a discussion about whether five bowlers are enough, especially against SENA teams on good batting pitches. That is despite how that strategy didn't work against South Africa or even Australia during the bilaterals before the WC.

Skipper Harmanpreet Kaur too admitted that they will discuss the bowling attack, but reiterated that the plan gave them a lot of success in the past.Yes, India have been successful, but not against Australia — a team they have beaten only twice in 17 ODIs since the 2017 World Cup. And the pressure of a global event is different from that of a bilateral, as seen during the SA game. The issues with the bowling attack have been well recorded over the last three years. Since 2023, India have handed debuts to at least 17 bowlers/all-rounders and that tells the story.

The team management continues to talk about learnings to take from the last two losses before the next game, but that is not an ideal case scenario. In a tournament like the WC, especially at home, they are expected to execute the laid-out plans rather than wait for a mistake to cost them. India have far too many past examples of such losses — including the 2022 WC where they lost to all SENA teams and made an early exit. A repeat of that result could be devastating for Indian cricket, especially after the rise the women's game has seen since then.

India now have to win at least two of their next three games, which include England, New Zealand and Bangladesh, to have a chance at making the semifinals. For that to happen, they will have to take a hard look at their plans and make the changes necessary, rather than waiting for another loss to happen against England in Indore, the coming Sunday.

Not shy with bat, Hope rises for West Indies

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@ New Delhi

WHEN Shai Hope broke through the senior set-up for the first time in 2015, he was supposed to be the mainstay of the side for a long time.

His promise flickered but there was a mismatch between prophecy and reality. That changed across five madcap summer days in Headingly when Hope scored two 100s to take West Indies home in a thriller in 2017. A new hero was birthed, divination had materialised. And, then, nothing. West Indies lurched from one crisis to another. Covid came. Countries and regions went into lockdown. Hope became a one-day machine, averaging over 50. Hope left Test cricket and became their white-ball captain. Hope became a T20 cricketer as he started touring the franchise world. After he had turned his back on the world of five-day cricket, he had played 119 T20 games.

Then, in June, a fig leaf. He came back to the fold in the series against Australia. He could manage 48, 2, 21, 17, 23 and 2 in six innings but it was not a series for the batters. He showed some flashes in the first Test but over the last four days in Delhi, he has showed more than the odd glimpse. His game against spin was assured, there was a method to the way he went about constructing his innings and he was prepared to be patient.

He might have got out on 103 also ending the team's hope but this could be the starting of the second wind for a cricketer who has always had the potential for magic. Can he now align potential with reality?

White Ferns take on Chamari's SL

WITH NEW ZEALAND FACING SRI LANKA IN COLOMBO, A LOOK...

RANAWEERA THE X FACTOR

At 39, Inoka Ranaweera has been the best bowler of Sri Lanka in this World Cup. The left-arm spinner has made an impact every time she took the field, but her lone effort has not been enough for Sri Lanka to get their first win. She will be crucial against New Zealand, a team that is loaded with right-hand batters, on Tuesday.

SRI LANKA VS NEW ZEALAND, COLOMBO
Live on Star Sports and JioHotstar, 3 PM

Eyes on Bates

Suzie Bates is playing her fifth World Cup, and potentially her last in the format. She's the third leading run-scorer in the format and highest ever for New Zealand. However, her form is becoming a concern. She averages 17.4 this year with her last century coming in 2023. New Zealand need their senior-most player to come to the party.

Bright start for Indians at worlds

ANMOL GURUNG @ Guwahati

IT was a good day at the court for Indian junior shuttlers as the individual events for the Eye Level Cup began here on Monday. Singles specialist Vennala Kalagotla barely broke any sweat as she dispatched Siofra Flynn within 12 minutes in their women's singles Round of 128 encounter. The 17-year-old from Telangana, who had won the Badminton Asia Junior Championships bronze, was just too skillful for her helpless Irish opponent. Earlier, Mizoram's H Lalthazuala (men's singles, rd of 128) passed his first hurdle without much fuss.

Results (Indians): WS: V Kalagotla bt S Flynn (IRL) 15-1, 15-6. MS: H Lalthazuala bt D Mukasa (UGA) 15-4, 15-4; T Talasila bt M Mesterhazy (HUN) 5-15, 15-7, 15-7. XD: C Lalramsanga/T Suri bt S O'Rourke/M Shochan (IRL) 15-13, 15-9. V Dev/D Walda bt A Nair/M Fox (ENG) 15-6, 15-11. VK Kode/K Manchala bt O Adu-Mintah and MA Korama Adu (GHA) 15-7, 15-8.

Simon aims for sky with ex-world champ father by his side

ANMOL GURUNG @ Guwahati

MORE than two decades ago, Peter Rasmussen had disrupted the badminton world by reaching the pinnacle. The former ace, renowned for his footwork and stinging jump-smashes, had taken a rare path then by becoming the first Dane and a non-Asian player to capture the world title since 1977.

In the following years, he had gone on to capture the European crown before an injury forced him to retire in the early 2000s. Now, his son Simon, who's featuring in the ongoing World Junior Championships here, is looking to follow in his footsteps.

Simon comes across as any other regular teenager who's here to leave his mark on the court. After acing his men's opening singles match at the World Championships, the Danish shuttler was in good spirits. Peter, who also doubles up as his coach, is also here to inspire him. "I think I was a bit nervous because it was the first round. I often feel a bit tense in the beginning of matches, especially first-round matches. But I was able to do quite well even though I was quite nervous," Simon said.

Given his father's exploits and his family's love for the racquet sport, badminton was destined to be a large slice of his life. "I grew up with badminton. It's a big part of my identity and also my life in general. Both my siblings (older brother and younger sister) are into the sport. My mother and grandparents played the sport. We are a badminton family."

"My father has always been my coach. He has taught me how to cope with my matches when I'm nervous, when I'm playing badly or even when I'm playing well...how to keep pushing hard and try to focus on the next point. He has also taught me about technique, we have trained a lot together in different halls. My mother, she has been more like a supporter for me. In terms of analysing the game, she is not as good as my father but she's really helpful and a strong support system."

Peter Rasmussen with his son Simon in Guwahati | SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

Simon, of course, is miles away from being a complete player. Having watched Peter's conquering acts online, he wants to mirror his techniques as he works on his development. "I have watched many of his games, especially the World Championships. What I look for in his game is his footwork, it's special... how he moves on the court, trying to learn how I can adopt his fluency to my game. He did a lot of footwork when he was playing and he has told me that's something that I need to focus a lot on, trying to be fluent and conserve more energy when I'm playing."

Being a champion sportsperson's child also has its potential curveballs as a sizeable number of people tend to set the bar high, thereby amplifying the weight of expectations. But Simon chooses to count on his blessings and stressed that pressure comes from within. "The pressure has never come from my father, my mother and family and so on but mostly from the inside. It's not like I feel pressure from him or other members of my family but mostly from myself."

Coming into the junior world meet, Simon had featured in just three events (recognised by BWF). The 18-year-old wants to take one step at a time approach for now. "Right now, I'm just trying to train as much as possible. I have also been playing tournaments but mostly in Denmark. I'm just focussing on developing my game, my skills, and technique. Then later, maybe, in one year or two years, I'll be competing in the international circuit, the European circuit and try and win future series and challenges and so on."

INSPIRING WITH SPEED

Rider Kavin achieves highest finish in Spain

ASHOK VENUGOPAL @ Chennai

KAVIN Samaar Quintal is turning out to be a trailblazer for motorcycle sport in India. After becoming the first Indian rider to compete in the last year's World Supersport 300 Championship in Czech Republic, he has achieved a best-ever result for an Indian in Spain's prestigious Copa de Espana de Velocidad in Jerez on his Superbike Debut. Astride a BMW M1000R with the EasyRace team, the 20-year-old from Chennai finished fourth and seventh in two races, which took place on Tuesday (October 7).

Kavin recounted his experiences riding on the historic Jerez circuit. "It was an amazing and completely new experience for me. It was my first time on a Superbike, so everything felt different. the speed, power, and handling. The team and everyone around me were really supportive and helped me a lot to get through the weekend. Riding with the BMW EasyRace team in such a professional setup gave me a lot of confidence and made it a weekend I'll never forget," he told this daily from Malaysia, where he is partaking in the Asia Road Racing Championship.

The Jerez track, which has seen some of premier motor sport's fiercest battles, has a big fan in Kavin. "It's one of my favourites," he said, before adding, "I had only ridden there twice before, more than a year ago. So, I was a little nervous at first because it had been a long time, but also excited. It's such a fast and flowing track, which suits my riding style. Having said that, some technical sections really test a rider's rhythm and precision. I could feel why it's a favourite among MotoGP riders. Each lap was a learning experience, and I gradually built my confidence through the sessions," he recollected.

The 4.4 kilometre track, which is known to put riders to the limit, did not spare Kavin, too, as he suffered a crash. However, the fact that he got back on the track and finish in the top-10 is a remarkable feat.

Scotland stay in race as Dutch move closer

AGENCIES @ Paris

SCOTLAND ground out a 2-1 home win over Belarus on Sunday to stay in contention for automatic qualification to the 2026 World Cup, while the Netherlands closed in on securing their berth with a win over Finland.

Steve Clarke's Scotland sit joint top of Group C with Denmark, after the Danes beat Greece 3-1. Denmark are first on goal difference but their win in Copenhagen ensured Scotland of at least a play-off spot as they bid to make a first World Cup appearance since 1998.

Poland remain on the Netherlands's heels following a 2-0 win in Lithuania. Faroe Islands continued their excellent form in Group L as they stunned the Czech Republic in Torshavn, winning 2-1. Croatia, World Cup runners-up in 2018, are three points ahead of the Czech Republic after an unconvincing 3-0 home win against Gibraltar.

AVOID SYRUP, THAT COUGH MAY SELF HEAL

ASHISH SRIVASTAVA @ New Delhi

AS India confronts yet another tragedy linked to contaminated cough syrups, several medical experts and public health officials are raising alarm over a deepening crisis of drug safety and oversight. At least 24 children under the age of five years in Madhya Pradesh have died after consuming 'Coldrif' cough syrup, which laboratory tests revealed to contain dangerously high levels of diethylene glycol (DEG) — a toxic industrial solvent used in antifreeze and brake fluid.

According to preliminary investigations, the DEG concentration in Coldrif reached 48.6% — far exceeding the permissible limit of 0.1% set by both Indian authorities and the World Health Organization. Two other brands, Respifresh TR and ReLife, have also been found contaminated and subsequently recalled. While no deaths have yet been linked to those syrups, health authorities say hundreds of children across several districts have been hospitalised with acute kidney injury.

Experts say the tragedy exposes not only grave lapses in drug manufacturing and quality control but also systemic regulatory failures. Preliminary findings point to breaches at multiple stages — from raw material procurement to final product testing — suggesting that oversight mechanisms meant to protect patients, particularly children, have broken down.

Coughs in kids will self heal

But beyond regulation, doctors say education and awareness are equally vital. "Parents must understand that most childhood coughs do not need medication," said Dr Rohan Krishnan, chief patron of the Federation of All India Medical Association (FAIMA). "The focus should be on prevention, proper nutrition, and medical supervision when required — not on self-medication."

Unsupervised consumption of cough syrup — particularly in children — can have severe consequences. "Ingredients like codeine, dextromethorphan or alcohol can depress respiration, cause sedation and even be life-threatening. In adults, misuse can lead to addiction and neurological harm."

The Vidarbha Chest Association has issued a strong advisory against unnecessary and unsupervised use of cough syrups, especially in children. "Most acute coughs are caused by self-limiting viral infections that do not require medication," the association said. It warned that many cough syrup formulations, particularly those containing codeine or sedating antihistamines, lack proven benefit and can cause respiratory depression, drowsiness, or dependency. "This is especially dangerous for young children under six, who are highly vulnerable to adverse effects," the statement added, urging pharmacies to avoid over-the-counter sales of such products for paediatric use.

Doctors are urging parents to rely on non-drug remedies such as rest, hydration and steam inhalation, noting that these are safer and often more effective than medication. "For most coughs, rest, fluids and patience work better than unnecessary medication," the association said.

Dr Vivek Jain, senior director and unit head at Fortis Hospital, Shalimar Bagh, Delhi, said the government has already tightened its regulations following earlier episodes of DEG contamination. "After a series of child deaths linked to toxic cough syrups, India has significantly strengthened rules on their manufacture and use," he said.

"The Health Ministry now advises that no cough syrup should be given to children under two years of age, and use in those under five must occur only under medical supervision. All syrups must comply with Revised Schedule M (Good Manufacturing Practices standard) to ensure they are free from diethylene glycol and other impurities," Dr Jain said.

Lethal combination

Diethylene glycol, when ingested, is metabolised into diglycolic acid — a compound that attacks the kidneys, causing acute tubular necrosis and, in severe cases, irreversible renal failure. Symptoms typically start with fever and cough but progress rapidly to reduced urine output, swelling and metabolic acidosis. Without timely intervention, death can occur within days.

Explaining why DEG keeps finding its way into medicines, Dr Jain said cost-cutting by manufacturers is often to blame. "DEG is a cheap solvent and dissolves active ingredients well, but it's an industrial chemical, not a pharmaceutical one. Some unscrupulous manufacturers substitute it for safer substances like glycerine or propylene glycol. Because it's colourless and odourless, it can pass undetected without proper testing."

The recurring crises highlight deep flaws in India's drug regulation framework. "Cough syrups in India are governed by the Drugs and Cosmetics Act of 1940, and the Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation oversees approvals. But the inclusion of toxic chemicals like diethylene glycol points to either gross negligence or deliberate malpractice. Such contamination is strictly prohibited, and its presence in any formulation represents a serious breach of law and ethics," Dr Sushil Kalra, director of internal medicine at CK Birla Hospitals in Jaipur, said.

Regulatory lapses

The episode was a result of regulatory negligence that has cost lives, said Dr Krishnan. "This is very unfortunate. Many drug companies should have been banned, and several drug combinations should not be available in the market. The Madhya Pradesh issue has shown that banned drug combinations are still easily accessible. The responsibility must not stop at the prescribing doctor — it must extend to those who approved and licensed these products." The Centre has directed all state authorities to intensify inspections, enforce stricter testing and trace the sources of contamination. Manufacturers have been ordered to maintain full transparency on ingredients and ensure quality control across supply chains.

As investigations continue, the deaths of these children stand as a grim reminder that the smallest lapse in drug safety can have the gravest of consequences. Medicine, meant to heal, has once again turned deadly — and until accountability is fixed, India's youngest patients remain at risk.

NATURAL REMEDIES FOR KIDS' COUGHS

ENCOURAGE HYDRATION: Hydration is one of the most soothing throat remedies for toddlers. Fluids thin mucus, soothe the throat and prevent dehydration. Warm liquids like caffeine-free tea, broth, or lemon water provide comfort and reduce irritation. For infants, increased breastfeeding or formula feeding ensures hydration

USE A HUMIDIFIER OR VAPOUR THERAPY: Dry air can worsen coughs by irritating the throat. A cool-mist humidifier helps relieve this irritation by adding moisture to the air. Alternatively, warm steam therapy works well for older children. Let your child inhale vapours from a bowl of warm water or during a warm shower

HONEY AS GENTLE REMEDY: A spoonful of honey coats the throat, reduces irritation, and may even have antimicrobial properties. For kids over one-year-old, give one teaspoon of honey before bed to ease nighttime coughing. However, honey should not be given to children under one-year-old due to the risk of botulism

SALTWATER GARGLES FOR SORE THROAT RELIEF: Saltwater helps reduce inflammation, clears mucus, and relieves throat irritation. Saltwater gargles are an effective sore throat relief tip for kids over the age of six. All you need to do is mix half a teaspoon of salt into a glass of warm water. This remedy works best when done 2-3 times a day

ELEVATE HEAD WHILE SLEEPING: You can elevate your child's head by placing a pillow or pushing the mattress upwards. This practice allows mucus to drain instead of pooling in the throat, further reducing nighttime coughs. However, make sure that your child is comfortable and not straining their neck

SALINE NASAL DROPS: When little ones can't blow their noses, saline drops paired with a nasal aspirator work wonders. Start by using saline drops or spray, tilt your child's head back and put 2-3 drops in each nostril. Let it sit for a minute to loosen the mucus. Then, use either a bulb syringe or tube aspirator to suction each nostril gently

PROPER REST: For kids, fighting an infection requires energy, which can wear out a baby, toddler, or child (and even adults). Rest is essential for healing, so extra sleep is normal and beneficial during illness

SPECIAL FOODS AND DRINKS: Skip plain water if kids resist it. Instead, offer fun alternatives like fruit smoothies or homemade juice popsicles. Cold treats such as pudding and frozen yoghurt feel soothing on a sore throat and are easier to swallow. Warm liquids work magic, too, like chicken broth, mild chamomile tea, or simply warm water

NASAL STRIPS: Similar to those designed for adults, children's versions of nasal strips (small-sized) are believed to employ soft pressure on the nostrils, lift them and facilitate easier sleeping. They are recommended for ages 5 and above

MENTHOLATED RUBS: Mentholated ointments, which include menthol and eucalyptus oils, are external substances that relieve cough and nasal blockage in children aged two years and older. When applied to the chest, these rubs create a cooling sensation that can temporarily relieve cough symptoms by stimulating cold receptors in the skin. These products should not be applied to broken skin or used in excessive amounts

On Liver cirrhosis

Consultant medical gastroenterologist, Manipal Hospital, Bhubaneswar

Myth: Alcohol is the only cause for liver cirrhosis

Fact: No, alcohol is the most common cause of cirrhosis in India. There are many other causes - chronic viral infection like hepatitis B, hepatitis C, combined infection of hepatitis B and D viruses, and other non alcoholic conditions like diabetes mellitus, obesity, and hypertension.

Myth: It occurs only in the elderly

Fact: Cirrhosis of liver can develop in any person - be it child, adult or elderly person. In children, causes of cirrhosis are Wilson's disease (abnormal copper metabolism), hemochromatosis (abnormal iron metabolism), biliary atresia or alagille syndrome (bile ducts congenital defect), and chronic viral hepatitis.

Myth: Non-veg and turmeric powder should be avoided in such patients

Fact: In cirrhosis, the liver can't synthesise protein or albumin. So patients need to take extra protein in their diet and non-vegetarian foods are a good source of protein. Turmeric powder also has no harm in cirrhosis and its anti-inflammatory properties are usually helpful.

Myth: Liver cancer cannot be cured

Fact: Liver cancer can be cured, but it depends on the character of tumour and liver synthetic function.

Weak immunity, low vaccination, pollution behind H3N2 surge

XPLAINER

ASHISH SRIVASTAVA @ New Delhi

NORTH India witnessed one of the most severe outbreaks of H3N2 influenza in recent years, with hospitals across Delhi-NCR and adjoining states reporting a surge in cases of high fever, cough, and body ache. Doctors say the outbreak has been fuelled by a combination of environmental factors, weakened post-pandemic immunity, and low vaccination coverage — turning what was once a seasonal flu into a prolonged public health concern.

"The situation this year is worrisome," said Dr Ankita Baidya, head of infectious diseases at Manipal Hospitals, Dwarka. "Post the Covid-19 pandemic, our immunity has weakened, making us more vulnerable. The lack of awareness around adult vaccination and the fact that many people haven't taken vaccines against the current circulating strains, which are more virulent, have contributed to the surge."

She added that crowded public spaces, poor ventilation, and rising air pollution levels are worsening respiratory symptoms and accelerating the spread of the virus. "We are still seeing a steady number of flu cases in OPDs. While most patients have mild symptoms, those with comorbidities such as diabetes, heart problems, or lung diseases are coming in with more severe illness," she said.

Vulnerable groups

H3N2, a subtype of the influenza A virus, typically causes symptoms similar to the common flu — fever, sore throat, cough, cold, body ache, and fatigue — but can lead to complications in vulnerable groups. Unlike Covid-19, the virus does not usually cause loss of taste or smell. The infection spreads rapidly within households, often infecting several family members within 48 hours.

"Currently, the number of flu patients has stabilised, but it has not declined," Dr Baidya said. "We continue to see entire families affected. Some patients, particularly those with pre-existing conditions or compromised immunity, require ICU care. However, with timely diagnosis and supportive management, complications can be avoided."

Dr Tushar Tayal, associate director of internal medicine at CK Birla Hospital, Gurugram, said nearly 70% of influenza infections in Delhi-NCR and nearby regions are being caused by the H3N2 strain. "About one in four samples are testing positive. This surge is due to a more aggressive strain, lower vaccination coverage, and changing weather conditions that favour virus transmission," he said.

According to him, the post-monsoon months from August to October are typically the most conducive for flu spikes in northern India. "Fluctuating humidity and cooler temperatures allow the virus to thrive, especially in crowded areas such as markets, schools, and public transport. With the festive season underway, travel, shopping, and social gatherings are further accelerating the spread," he explained.

Get vaccinated

Experts warn that influenza viruses, especially H3N2, mutate frequently through a process known as antigenic drift, which allows them to evade immunity from past infections or vaccines. "Even those who have had the flu or been vaccinated in previous years may not be fully protected now," Dr Tayal said. "That's why the influenza vaccine is updated annually based on WHO's recommendations of the most likely circulating strains."

Doctors continue to emphasise the importance of flu vaccination for high-risk groups—older adults, children, pregnant women, and those with chronic illnesses such as diabetes, asthma, or heart disease. "It's a vaccine-preventable disease," said Dr Baidya. "Annual flu vaccination remains the best protection against severe cases. The vaccines take around two weeks to offer effective immunity, so timely administration is key."

The main symptoms being reported are sudden high fever, chills, severe body and muscle aches, headache, sore throat, fatigue, cough, and nasal congestion. The illness tends to be more intense and longer-lasting than the common cold. Doctors advice seeking medical help if fever persists beyond three days, cough worsens, or breathing difficulty develops.

While most cases are mild, there have been instances of severe illness requiring hospitalisation, particularly among the elderly and patients with underlying conditions. "There have been several cases where patients developed pneumonia or required prolonged hospital care," said Dr Tayal. "Although official data on fatalities is unavailable, H3N2-related pneumonia has been a serious concern this season."

An experienced obstetrician knows when to let pregnancy progress naturally

Declining fertility and rising maternal age are reshaping how pregnancy is managed, prompting changes in both clinical practice and patient expectations. Dr John Smoleniec, director of the feto-maternal unit at Liverpool Hospital, Sydney, talks about the key challenges and evolving practices in maternal-fetal medicine in an interview with with Unnikrishnan S. Edited excerpts:

INTERVIEW
DR JOHN SMOLENIEC

What is a high-risk pregnancy?

A pregnancy is considered high-risk when there's an increased chance of complications for the mother or baby. This can be due to factors like age, twins, IVF, diabetes, or fetal growth issues. But risk is relative — what's high-risk in one population may be normal in another. Good judgment and context matter more than rigid charts.

Population differences also matter. A woman who is small in build, such as many women of Asian descent, may naturally have smaller babies. On international growth charts, these babies might be labeled high-risk due to size, even though they are normal for their population. This highlights the need for careful clinical judgment and customised assessment rather than relying solely on standard charts.

The real challenge is distinguishing genuine risk from statistical outliers. An experienced obstetrician knows when to act and when to let a pregnancy progress naturally. Overuse of technology or misinterpretation by non-experts can lead to unnecessary interventions, creating anxiety and undermining trust.

Should pregnancy be treated as a normal process rather than medicalised?

Pregnancy is natural, and most women deliver without issues. But when complications arise, society expects perfect outcomes. So while we aim to avoid over-medicalising, proper screening, risk assessment, and timely referrals are essential to ensure safety. Both doctors and patients need to understand when specialist care is necessary and when it's safe to let pregnancy take its natural course.

What's your advice for those considering home births, especially in high-risk pregnancies?

Home births have always existed, but they carry risks — especially when complications arise late in pregnancy. If you're only planning one or two children, it's worth asking: do you want to risk it, or choose a facility with trained professionals ready for any emergency.

How do you approach a patient after diagnosing a fetal anomaly?

Start with empathy — talk to them like family. Communicate clearly and kindly, even during the scan. Acknowledge their anxiety, offer emotional support, and never take away hope. Discuss next steps based on their needs: reassurance, further tests like genetic screening, or referral for foetal therapy. Always show you care — because if you can't, you shouldn't be in the job.

What advancements have been made foetal anomaly diagnosis?

AI is increasingly used in ultrasound for pattern recognition, offering potential for early anomaly detection. However, new tech must be validated. For example, even with good AI models, false positive rates can be around 20%, meaning one in five results could be misleading.

Are high-risk pregnancies increasing, or is it just better diagnosis?

Both. More women are having children later in life, which raises risk. Plus, earlier and more frequent screening—especially for conditions like diabetes—means we are identifying risks that were missed before.

What lifestyle changes help ensure a healthy pregnancy?

Lifestyle plays a critical role — not just during pregnancy, but before and after as well. A healthy cardiovascular, endocrine, and metabolic system sets the foundation for better outcomes. Unfortunately, modern life is sedentary and busy, leaving little time for regular exercise unless you're highly disciplined, which makes maintaining good habits a real challenge.

Pregnancy should be treated as an opportunity to screen for broader health issues. Avoiding alcohol, smoking, and recreational drugs is also essential.

TALK OF THE HOUR

Kannada film community adds on to the boiling conversation on industry work culture after B'luru girl Deepika Padukone addresses controversies over her exit from major south projects following 'creative and contractual differences'

Demands aren't unreasonable: Samyukta Hornad, actor

Shooting depends on factors like logistics, locations and even seasons. I've done multiple film shoots at night. There's no choice but to do it, even if it's a fight sequence that has to be shot in the rain. However, the rules are different for male actors. Many times, our problems like women's issues or concerns over washroom facilities, are not addressed. This is why most of them employ men as their crew and technical team members. We need to bring about change at the grassroots level. Male actors work for four hours to accommodate their personal needs, like a workout, so the production ends up shooting with female actors. Deepika has earned the status where she can put forward her demands, and if that's part of a contract and is making things easier for her, then what's the issue? Some male actors are also accompanied by three or more cooks. She's under scrutiny only because she brought up this disparity. I don't think her demands are unreasonable.

Personal needs should be kept personal: Abhishek Iyengar, writer

In the field of art, nothing is regulated and streamlined, so if an 8-hour shift is implemented, it may cut down a lot of work harassment and improve the quality of work because people will come with a fixed mindset. About Deepika seeking extensive accommodations for her 25-member entourage, I think the very idea should be debunked. If the luxury accommodation for the staff is approved, will her inclusion benefit the film financially to this extent? Doubtful. Gone are the days when producers used to bank the entire film on one actor. Personal needs should be kept personal. The biggest stars in the industry have never made such demand.

They can politely disagree and walk off: Mandara Battalahalli, actor

Many directors say they like to retain male actors they have worked with in their hit films and cast fresh female actresses as they come with 'lesser demands'. When you dive into the issue, its just women asking for some fundamental facilities – like a clean washroom, a schedule that doesn't push you to the edge of your physical wellness. Male actors are almost always the priority, because they are said to be the ones who pull the audiences, as most Indian films cater to only the male idea of entertainment. They say people with budget constraints will have to work crazy hours to get the job done, but it isn't fair to achieve your dreams at the cost of so many people's physical and mental well-being. If they aren't okay with providing the actors' requirements, they can politely disagree and walk off. The problem is when people get their ego hurt when demands are made, which comes from the nasty hierarchy that so clearly exists.

Respect should be equal for everyone: Abhaya Simha, writer-director

Unfortunately, a woman advocating for work-life balance is more likely to be negatively labelled than a man, which shows that deep-seated gender stereotypes persist. Women are expected to be accommodating, so when they assert a demand like fixed hours, it violates this expectation and is often perceived as being 'pushy' or 'difficult'. A man making the same request is seen as 'assertive,' 'principled,' or a 'strong leader' protecting his time. Industry somehow justifies this by saying the business happens because of the male heroes and not the actresses. That might be true. But the basic human respect should be equal for everyone. However, a systematic work schedule doesn't fully solve deeper ethical issues like toxic power dynamics, payment delays or harassment. Lasting professionalism requires complementary reforms: formal contracts and a cultural shift in mindset. While the schedule is the key to tackling disorganisation, a holistic approach is needed to truly reform the industry's culture.

ANJALI RAM

EXTRAVAGANT dance sequences, sweeping romance, flawless action and a glowing star cast – this is the image Bollywood sells to cinephiles. But beneath the dazzle and million-dollar budgets lies a relentless work culture that fuels the magic.

Conversations about the reality behind the reel intensified after Deepika Padukone revealed her exit from Kalki 2898 AD and Spirit, hinting at sexism and unequal work conditions. She said, "By virtue of being a woman, I'm called pushy," after facing pushback for demanding a fixed 8-hour workday, a norm easily granted to male counterparts. Notably, the news about the actress' exit from the south projects had earlier made headlines after it was alleged that she had demanded to accommodate her team of 25 members.

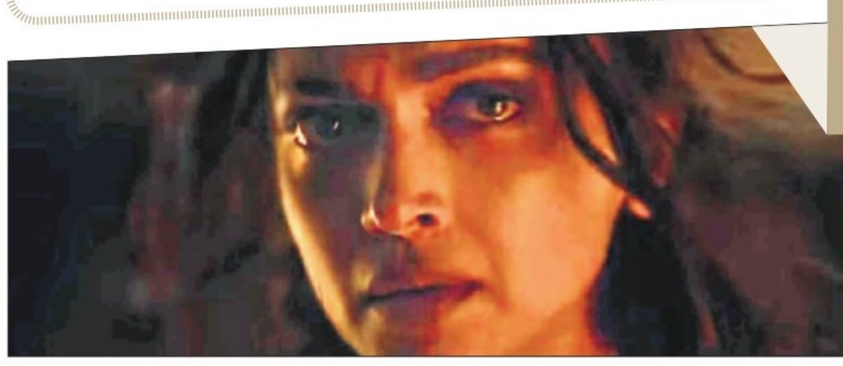
Her recent stand has spotlighted not just gender parity but also the industry's deeper neglect of basic working standards, prompting debate within the film fraternity and beyond.

Disparity between top heroines & budding female actors: Sakshi Meghana Kantharaj, actor

Handling an 8-hour shoot can be challenging. Depending on the demands of a character, the time can vary from 8 to even 13 hours, especially if the character needs heavy makeup and a complicated hairdo. In the film industry, we have to support the entire team, and if it's not a heroine-oriented movie, we can't prioritise just the heroine. There's also an obvious disparity between top heroines and budding female actors. I can relate to this as a budding actor. I've often worked 12-13 hours a day. Sometimes it's very challenging, especially when factoring in the time spent on makeup, jewellery and costumes and carrying the weight of it. Meanwhile, topmost heroines typically work for around 8 hours. It's the responsibility of the director to plan things better.

Could elevate quality of filmmaking: Hemanth Kumar, director

If anything, actors demanding structured working hours can elevate the quality of filmmaking in India, push producers to plan smarter, and bring parity with global standards. It requires a culture shift, but it doesn't compromise creativity; it protects it. I'd rather have an 8-hour day with 6 great scenes than a 16-hour day with 2 magical shots and a burnt-out crew. This isn't about a diva demand – it's about setting healthy norms. Once top talent demands structured workdays, the entire ecosystem shifts.



'KALKI DESERVES COMMITMENT AND MORE'

All hell broke out when Vyjayanthi Movies, the production company backing Kalki 2898 AD, tweeted about ending their creative partnership with Deepika Padukone, who played a key role in the film's first instalment. Sharing the decision, they wrote on X, now twitter: This is to officially announce that @deepikapadukone will not be a part of the upcoming sequel of #Kalki2898AD. After careful consideration, We have decided to part ways. Despite the long journey of making the first film, we were unable to find a partnership. And a film like @Kalki2898AD deserves that commitment and much more. We wish her the best with her future works." The decision was, of course, met with shock and outrage from fans of the actress. Though the film's director Nag Aswin remained tight-lipped about her exit, his cryptic post on Instagram a day after the announcement with a picture from the film and a caption that read, "You can't change what happened, but you can choose what happens next' had raised many eyebrows.

This festive season, MATTER, India's leading electric mobility innovator, has unveiled its "22nd Century Smart Ownership Plans," aimed at making EV ownership more accessible, affordable, and future-ready. Centered around its flagship geared electric motorbike, the AERA 5000+, these new plans are set to redefine how Indians experience and finance electric mobility.

The AERA 5000+--India's first geared electric motorcycle with a Lifetime Battery Warranty--now comes with two breakthrough ownership models: Product-as-a-Service (P-a-a-S) and Buy Now, Pay Later (BNPL).

Under P-a-a-S, customers can own the AERA 5000+ for an introductory price of ₹1.29 lakh (condtions apply), and pay just ₹1.16*(condtions apply)*/km for battery usage. This model separates the vehicle cost from battery usage, reducing upfront investment and ensuring running costs are even lower than petrol bikes.

With BNPL, buyers can pay a part of the cost upfront via UPI or cards, avail of cashback offers or no-cost EMIs, and finance the rest through small, flexible instalments. Both plans are designed to lower financial entry barriers and promote smarter, cleaner mobility.

Key Benefits of the 22nd Century Smart Ownership Plans: ■ Lifetime Battery Warranty with worry-free pay-as-you-use performance ■ Future-Proof Upgrade Assistance for newer AERA models ■ Access to MATTER Charge Hubs ■ Flexible Payments via UPI, cards, and financing options

Mohal Lalbhai, Founder & CEO of MATTER, said, "With the AERA 5000+ and our Smart Ownership Plans, we are making EVs not just environmentally conscious but also financially smart."

THE EIGHT MOST EFFECTIVE DUMBBELL EXERCISES FOR TOTAL BODY STRENGTH

For anyone looking to build functional strength at home, dumbbells are among the most versatile tools. With a single pair, you can work every major muscle group developing endurance, stability and balance. This full-body dumbbell routine combines eight foundational movements that strengthen the legs, core, arms and back while improving coordination and mobility.

The workout follows a simple structure: Perform each exercise for 45 seconds, rest for 15 seconds and move on to the next.

DUMBBELL RACK SQUAT
A powerful lower-body move, this squat variation targets the quads, glutes, and hamstrings while engaging the core. Holding the dumbbells at shoulder level increases resistance and improves posture throughout the movement.

DUMBBELL SEESAW PRESS
A shoulder burner that alternates arm presses, working each side independently. It helps correct muscular imbalances while building stability through the shoulders and upper back.

DUMBBELL OVERHEAD LUNGE
A compound exercise that trains both the legs and the core. Holding a dumbbell overhead adds an element of balance and shoulder engagement, forcing the body to stabilise through the midsection while performing lunges.

DUMBBELL RENEGADE ROW
This move strengthens the upper back and arms while engaging the entire core. From a plank position, alternating rows work the lats and obliques while improving posture and control.

SINGLE-LEG DEADLIFT
An excellent unilateral exercise that targets the hamstrings, glutes and lower back. It challenges balance and activates the stabilising muscles in the ankles and hips, improving overall coordination.

DUMBBELL CHEST PRESS
Performed lying down, this movement builds the chest, shoulders, and triceps. Maintaining a 45-degree elbow angle protects the shoulder joint while allowing for a full range of motion and muscle engagement.

DUMBBELL PLANK PULL-THROUGH
A dynamic core exercise that works the obliques and shoulders. The goal is to pull the dumbbell across the body without twisting the hips, emphasising control and core strength over speed.

DUMBBELL TOE TOUCH CRUNCH
A core finisher that combines an abdominal crunch with a leg raise, improving core definition and stability. The added weight increases intensity, making it an effective end to the routine.

This eight-move dumbbell workout delivers a complete strength and conditioning session in under 20 minutes. It builds lean muscle, improves joint mobility and enhances endurance without requiring gym equipment. Done three to four times a week, it's a smart, efficient way to stay strong, flexible and functional, wherever you train.

HOMECOMING

Artist Bratin Khan's artworks transform surfaces into luminous spaces where figures appear radiant, often touched by a spiritual glow

FINDING HOME

Amid sage green walls, fish-headed figures, and sunlit terraces, artist Neha Sahai finds her stillness. A home that reflects her art, her past, and her search for belonging

ADITHI REENA AJITH

IT was a rainy morning in Noida – the kind that turns the skyline grey and the city's edges soft. But inside artist Neha Sahai's duplex, everything glowed warm and golden, framed by her plant-laden terraces and an open studio that seems to hold its own sunlight. Stepping in feels almost cinematic, like entering a woodland cottage somehow suspended inside a high-rise. It's a self-contained world of sage-green wooden walls, books stacked along the shelves, and tables dotted with trinkets and ceramics – all telling the story of an artist finally at home after years of constant movement, and a long journey toward belonging.

Sahai and her husband, Vaibhav Srivastava, moved to Noida after years of shifting between Mumbai, Gurugram, and Bengaluru. The apartment reflects their two distinct worlds – the top floor is Sahai's realm, a sunlit living room in sage green, three open terraces, and the studio that doubles as her refuge. Below is Srivastava's office and a moodier den of dark wood and deep blues. "I love trees, flowers, light – I find clouds magical," she says. "Vaibhav likes calm, depth, and quiet. Together, it balances us."

Feeling of home

The daughter of a retired forest officer, Sahai grew up amid the woods – from Nainital to Mirzapur – constantly moving from one town to another. "Since I've always lived in the jungle, I've never really felt welcomed or had that feeling of belonging," Sahai says. Switching schools and adapting to new environments left her feeling out of place. Even in college, she recalls feeling distant from her peers – almost invisible.

That restlessness now finds its counterpoint in her Noida home – her sanctuary. The upper floor opens into three sunlit terraces overflowing with Champa, Madhumalti, and Bougainvillea. "I wanted to grow a vegetable garden, but because there's no direct sunlight, I'm not able to," she says, pointing at the living room that opens to the terrace which is one of her favourite spaces in the house besides her studio. "But this light, this space – it's everything I wanted. Romeo [my dog] loves the terrace and sitting in the sun. Both of us are sun people. We just need our own sunlight."

Sahai's home is filled with pieces collected over the years – travel souvenirs, thrifted objects, hand-painted ceramics, small sculptures picked up from local markets. From a tiny plate that an Italian ceramic seller on the roadside gifted to her which she cherishes, or the Gustav Klimt painting-turned-ring on her finger or even a vintage Egyptian tile that a friend gifted. Each one tells a story. Unrelated to one another they all find a spot in the house. "You pick up things when you move," she muses. "And after a while, they become part of your story – the only continuity you have."

Yet Sahai isn't a collector for the sake of it. "When we started travelling, we used to buy four or five things from every place," she says. "Now, we've restricted ourselves to one. Buy one, give something away. Don't let it pile up." There's an ease to her minimalism, free from the pressure to own or display more.

> I like when people make themselves at home. That's what a space should do – it should hold you, not restrict you — Neha Sahai, artist

Letting it be

Sahai 's path to becoming a full-time artist was anything but linear. Trained in fashion at NIFT, she later pursued business and juggled several roles – designer, entrepreneur, brand owner – constantly searching for a balance between stability and self-expression. "I've done everything and I've never been afraid to start over. Painting, though, was the one thing that stayed," she says.

A turning point came in 2019 during a trip to Amsterdam, when her Airbnb host offered to buy one of her paintings. "That moment of someone seeing value in what I'd made, brought me back to it," she says. Since then, her art has become both practice and therapy. "Painting slows me down. It doesn't ask me to adjust. It just lets me be," she adds.

Sahai 's studio is the heart of the house and an extension of her personality: cluttered in the best way, alive with detail. Brushes, colour pencils, and notebooks sprawl across her desk. Fish-shaped trinkets from Portugal sit beside handmade ceramics and sketches and swatches lining the wall, they all carry traces of her journey in every corner.

On the egg-white wall hangs her recent work, 'Mr. and Mrs. Chatterjee' – a reinterpretation of a newlywed couple on their honeymoon. In Sahai 's signature style, her figures have human torsos and fish heads. "This is the first man – a fish man," she says, gesturing at the canvas. "Fish man, because it's not about gender, it's about feminine energy and my fish man has calming feminine energy." Her fascination with hybrid creatures – half-human, half-fish runs through much of her work. "I have this very weird concept that I was a fish in a past life. They are fluid; they can adjust to any current," she says. "That probably comes from moving around so much as a child. You learn to adapt, to become a little bit everywhere and nowhere at once."

That ethos of letting it be, extends to the way she hosts people too. "I don't want guests to feel like they have to sit a certain way or touch things carefully around our house," says Sahai. "I like when people make themselves at home. That's what a space should do – it should hold you, not restrict you."

Working alongside a superstar like Darshan has been an absolute blessing: Rachana Rai

CE FEATURES

DARSHAN-STARRER The Devil, directed by Prakash Veer, is all set for a December 12 release, and the buzz is already palpable. The recently released second single, Onde Ondu Sala, featuring Darshan and Rachana Rai, has struck a chord with fans. Rachana, who is sharing screen space with Darshan for the first time, took to social media to express her admiration for the superstar.

"Working alongside a superstar like you has been an absolute blessing. Every single day on set was a lesson, watching your focus, patience, and effortless way of bringing a scene to life," she wrote, adding, "Beyond the camera, it's your warmth and genuine kindness that leave the biggest mark, truly one of the kindest souls I've ever come across, thank you for being not just an amazing co-star but an even more incredible human."

Produced under Shri Jaimatha Combines, the film also brings together music composer Ajaneesh Loknath and Darshan for the first time. Rachana fondly recalled the grueling beach shoots, the scorching sun, sunburns, unpredictable weather, and long hours, but emphasised that the results were magical, with the song sequences becoming a highlight of her experience.

The shoot, however, was not without its challenges. According to the makers, while filming on an isolated island, the crew faced the tail of a deadly thunderstorm from Vietnam, which had already claimed 30 lives. The storm disrupted half a day of shooting, damaging equipment and accessories, before the team was safely relocated back to Krabi Island.

Rachana also praised cinematographer Sudhakar S Raj and the entire crew, whose dedication turned demanding shoots into visually stunning sequences. She thanked fans for their love and support, saying it made the experience even more memorable.
